

Sanford Nominated For Vacant Place. On Supreme Court

Confirmation of Tennessee Judge Would Give State Two Members on High Court Bench.

HARRIS MUCH PLEASED
AT HARDING'S MOVE

Declares, Although He Would Have Preferred Democrat, Glad to See South Get Appointment.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, January 24.—Edward T. Sanford, United States district judge for the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee since 1908, was nominated today by President Harding to be associate justice of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice Pitney.

Judge Sanford is a recognized authority in the legal profession, which he entered in 1888, after receiving degrees at the University of Tennessee and Harvard. He is a former vice president of the American Bar association, and served as an assistant attorney-general of the United States under President Roosevelt. He is a republican and is 57 years old.

The nomination, if confirmed, will give Tennessee two members of the highest court, and will restore the political balance of six republicans and three democrats which obtained when President Harding took office. The other member from Tennessee is Justice Reynolds, a democrat, appointed by President Wilson.

To Seek Speedy Action.

Judge Sanford, who is a native of Knoxville, where he now lives, is the fourth member of the court to be named by President Harding. Justice Pitney's retirement, authorized by a special act of congress because of physical disability, became effective January 1, and it was anticipated today that senate leaders would seek action at once on the nomination of Judge Sanford so that the court could proceed to important pending cases with a full bench.

In connection with his long service in the legal profession, Judge Sanford has devoted much attention to education and to public affairs. He was for ten years a lecturer in law at the University of Tennessee and now is a trustee of that institution. He has served as president of the board of trustees of the George Peabody college for teachers and was one of the founders of the Knoxville General hospital.

A number of papers of note on legal and other subjects have been written by him, and he has delivered many lectures in various parts of the country.

In the senate the nomination was referred to the judiciary committee and Chairman Nelson stated that he would appoint a subcommittee next Monday to act on the matter.

HARRIS PLEASED AT APPOINTMENT.

Washington, January 24.—Commenting on the nomination today of Judge Edward T. Sanford, of Tennessee, to be an associate justice of the supreme court, Senator Harris, of Georgia, said:

"I am glad the president has appointed from the south a member of the highest court in our country. While I would have preferred a democrat, Judge Sanford is a man of fine character and excellent legal ability, and many people in Georgia have spoken highly of him. I am gratified to see that the president feels that our section should have representation on the important courts, commissions and boards of the government."

37 Big Awards Offered Earlier You Start, The Better Your Chance By "Help-Yourself Club"

You want to own a Packard Twin Six. You want to own a Franklin sedan. You want to own a fine Hudson coach, or you may want to own one of the eight other fine automobiles which The Constitution is giving to club members in this $25,000 Help-Yourself club campaign which is just starting. Eleven cars and many thousands of dollars in cash will be given to men and women in the territory covered by The Constitution for part of their spare time expended in an effort to increase its already large circulation.

The Help-Yourself club is open to all except employees of The Constitution. All you have to do to join this club is to fill out the entry blank which can be found in a full page advertisement in this issue, or send your name to the club manager and you will then be supplied with all forms necessary for your work.

The awards, thirty-five in all, will be given by votes. Three persons having the greatest number of votes at the close of the campaign will be given the three capital awards and the order in which they stand. Every person entered is competing for the capital awards. The territory covered by The Constitution has been divided into eight districts and in each district four prizes, consisting of one automobile and three cash prizes, have been assigned and must be won by each of the eight districts. Every person entered has an opportunity of winning one of the four prizes in their own district, or one of the three capital awards.

PUBLIC UTILITIES REPORT NORMAL CONDITIONS NEAR

All Traces of Storm Will Be Removed Within Forty-Eight Hours, Officials Declare Wednesday.

SERVICE NORMAL AGAIN, SAYS POWER COMPANY

Phone and Wire Companies Are Having Harder Time, However—Postal Hit Hard by Storm.

Aided by improvement in the weather public utilities are getting back to normal conditions and officials expect to have all service restored within the next 48 hours. C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, stated Wednesday that Thursday would be a fair day with little or no change in temperature until about noon and then probably the mercury would rise slightly.

Service on all lines of the Georgia Railway and Power company was restored Wednesday afternoon, less than 36 hours after the outbreak of the sleet storm of Tuesday and it was announced that the company, in addition to supplying its own customers, has gone to the rescue of companies in Tennessee, South Carolina and central Georgia that have not yet recovered from the terrific effects of the storm.

Western Union Telegraph officials stated that approximately 15 per cent of their service was incapacitated and that 18 or 20 points of connection were completely cut off by the storm. All lines along the Atlanta and West Point road were reported down as well as those of the Georgia road into Augusta. At least 16,000 poles were forced down by the sleet and wind and crews are being kept busy restoring them. It is believed that by Thursday afternoon telegraph service will be normal again.

Toll Wires Down.

None of the toll wires of the Bell Telephone company, within a radius of 50 miles around Atlanta, were rendered service and it was undetermined as to when normal service could be restored. Wires in the city were damaged to the extent of cutting off of 400 telephones, but work was well under hand and telephone communications were gradually being put back in order. Sixty poles were down within the city limits.

Long distance wires were all down, it is reported, with the exception of the Atlanta-Charlotte line, Birmingham and Gainesville, fairly good service being available over these.

Postal Telegraph company reported Wednesday that all its lines were out with the exception of Charlotte, N. C., and Birmingham. No telephone connections were available with the company to Florida points or New York, and in almost every direction its means of telephone communications were broken. Repair squads worked desperately to mend the damage and expected to repair much of the injury before Thursday.

The greatest inconvenience to the

DEBATE ON FARM CREDITS BILLS TO BE RESUMED

Washington, January 24.—Senate consideration of farm credits legislation is to be resumed tomorrow when the Lenroot-Anderson bill is to be taken up. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, co-author of the measure, is to open the debate with an explanation of the government aid legislation. Several days' discussion are in prospect and intervention of regular appropriation bills also promises to cause a further delay.

SIMS SUPPORTING FREE TEXTBOOKS, JACKSON REPORTS

Secretary of Committee Says Executive Told Him "Money Must and Shall Be Found."

MUSIC APPROPRIATION WILL NOT BE REDUCED

Secretary Tells of Offer of Power Company to Donate $2,000 to Supplement This Fund.

Mayor Walter A. Sims has given positive assurance that funds needed to carry out the free text-book program for Atlanta's public schools "must and shall be found," according to a statement made last night at a meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades by Secretary O. F. Jackson, of the legislative committee.

"I had just shown Mayor Sims," he said, "the report that our committee would make to the federation in which we said that we were happy to report that the chief executive, Mayor Sims, was squarely behind us in the movement to get money for free textbooks and that he is using every effort to have the money furnished from the general fund of the city. The mayor interrupted me at this point and said with emphasis, 'You are not putting the matter half strong enough. This fund must and shall be provided.'"

Mr. Jackson, who was reporting in the place of Chairman Jerome Jones, then explained that the free text-book program would have to come from the general city fund, as it would be impossible for it to be taken from the 26 per cent of general city income allowed under the law for use by the board of education.

Report is Cheered.

The information that Mayor Sims means to see to it that the free text-book program will be put through was received with applause by the gathered delegates, who cheered the report.

Another report rendered through Secretary C. F. Jackson was from the music committee, which had waited upon the finance committee of council asking that an additional appropriation be made for free music at the city parks. In this report it was declared that while the finance committee declined to increase the appropriation on account of the deficit in the city's funds, the committee was given the assurance that no cut would be made.

The music committee also reported that it had waited upon President P. S. Arkwright and that he had agreed to make a donation to the music fund of $2,000.

Debate followed the introduction of a resolution commending William

BITUMINOUS COAL CONTRACT SIGNED

Agreement Reached at Conference Virtually the Same as One Which Expires April 1.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, January 24.—Bituminous coal operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America today signed a new wage agreement running for one year and covering the tri-state competitive field of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. This agreement will be used as a standard for fixing wages and working conditions throughout the rest of the bituminous territory.

Same Agreement.

The new agreement, it was announced, was virtually the same as that which expires April 1, based on the federal fuel administration's findings in 1920. Copies were ordered sent immediately to President Harding, Attorney-General Daugherty and John Hays Hammond, chairman of the United States coal commission.

In Session One Week.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FIGHT ON ENTIRE G. O. P. LEGISLATION

Action Will Come Immediately After Selection of New Minority Leader in Senate.

WILL SEEK REVISION OF NEW TARIFF ACT

Representation on Foreign Debt Commission Also to Be Discussed at Conference of Minority Leaders.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 24.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The present democratic policy of passive resistance will undergo a complete reversal during the next session of congress, according to inference drawn from statements made by party leaders during recent days. Rather than occupy the defensive position which the present majority of republicans in both houses has forced upon them, minority leaders are planning to take the offensive and launch an aggressive attack on practically the entire administration legislative program, including that part which has already been enacted into law.

First steps toward formulating the plan will come within the next few weeks when a meeting of senate democrats will be held for the ostensible purpose of selecting a successor to Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the present minority leader of the senate, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

As Mr. Underwood's successor cannot be named, however, until the next congress has convened, it was suggested that the principal purpose of the meeting will be to determine plans and policies on a number of subjects concerning the next session. To this end it is understood that democratic leaders of the house will be invited to participate in the conference immediately after the minority leadership question has been discussed.

The program to be put forward calls for concerted action in both houses on several important subjects. For instance, efforts will be made to pass legislation revising the present Fordney-McCumber tariff act, with the view of forcing the president to veto it on the eve of a presidential election. Such a course would prove to be a great advantage to the party ticket, it is declared, as the whole tariff question would be revived in a very conspicuous way.

Two important questions expected to be considered by the coming conference will be whether the democrats desire representation on the foreign debt funding commission, and whether it is desirable to have continued on page 14, column 6.

Course in Thrift Will Be Started In City Schools

Savings Clubs Will Be Organized—Banners Offered Winning Grades.

A new course of instruction will be inaugurated in public schools of Atlanta next Tuesday, when each grade will be given lessons in thrift and saving clubs will be organized under auspices of the Educational Thrift association in conjunction with the Fulton National bank, of the city, according to announcement Wednesday.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, in his annual address recently to the board of education, recommended the new course, stating at that time that the Fulton National bank had offered to conduct it without cost to the city. Plans are now completed for inauguration of the movement next Tuesday. If successful, the course will become a permanent study in the public school system.

Under the arrangements perfected by the Fulton National each grade will be formed into separate saving clubs. An envelope will be given each student for his initial saving fund, amounts from one penny upward being collected by the teachers who will consolidate the savings, turn them over to the respective principals and a representative of the bank will collect them. The grade showing the largest number of depositors will be awarded banners, irrespective of the amounts collected.

Lawrence Hope, representing the Educational association, will be in charge of the movement until it is firmly established in all of the schools. It will require 18 clerks in the Fulton National bank to properly inaugurate the movement, according to Dr. W. J. Black, president of the institution. After the clubs are all perfected Mr. Hope will go elsewhere to start a similar movement, the purpose being to have the saving plan in

A. B. & A. STRIKER SHOT AND KILLED BY POLICE CHIEF

Manchester, Ga., January 24.—Frank Chapman, Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad striker since March, 1921, was shot and killed late today by J. D. O'Neill, chief of police.

The chief immediately communicated with Sheriff J. B. Jarrel, of Meriwether county, asking him to investigate the killing. O'Neill said that Chapman was drinking, drew a gun and attempted to shoot him. The chief says that he shot in self-defense.

MER ROUGE CASE AWAITS STATE'S SPECIAL WITNESS

Failure of Traveling Salesman to Arrive Prevents Adjournment of Bastrop Hearing Wednesday.

THREATEN MARTIAL LAW IN PARISH

Attorney-General Bears Message From Governor Warning Against Intimidation of Witnesses.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Bastrop, La., January 24.—With troops on duty in Morehouse parish in connection with the state's investigation into the activities of hooded men scheduled to depart immediately and with the hearing expected to be concluded tomorrow, Adjutant General Toombs arrived here today with a message from Governor Parker to leaders of the Ku Klux Klan and officials of the parish, it was learned on good authority, that if any of the state's witnesses were threatened in any way between the conclusion of the hearing and the meeting of the grand jury, martial law in the parish would be declared immediately.

General Toombs refused to deny or confirm the report, declaring that Governor Parker rather than himself should be the one to discuss it. The only reference he would make to troops was that the cavalry units on duty at Mer Rouge and Bastrop, and the four automobile riflemen here, would return home either tomorrow or Friday.

Hearing Delayed.

The hearing which was to have been concluded today after having been in progress since January 5, struck a snag when the last witness summoned, and regarded as one of the most important, telegraphed that because of illness it would be impossible for him to arrive here before tonight. As a consequence the hearing was adjourned to be resumed at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, an hour earlier than usual, in order that final adjournment might be taken before noon.

The absentee is the "mystery witness" who has been widely discussed here during the last few days. He is Leon L. Jones, a traveling salesman of Mobile, Miss., who is expected to testify regarding the last known movements of the hooded kidnappers of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, the bodies of whom were found in Lake La Fourche on December 22.

Jones, according to officials, was traveling through this section of Louisiana when his automobile broke down the night of August 24 and left him stranded on the Oak Ridge-Lake La Fourche highway near the lake. It

School Officers Urged to Guard Against Flames

Recent Tragedy at High Point School Recalled by State Board.

In a four-hour session held Wednesday, the state board of education passed upon several matters of general interest, handled a large amount of routine work and adopted resolutions calling upon all schools in the state to take special precautions to safeguard children from the danger of fires.

In resolutions the board called attention to the recent tragedy at the High Point school, in Newton county, when two children were burned to death and a large number severely injured. It was declared that this loss of life was largely due to the fact that there was only one exit.

County school boards and superintendents are urged to see that all buildings of more than one story are equipped with fire escapes and that fire drills are practised one or more times every month in all schools of two or more stories.

Board members also recommended one-story type of building.

The board passed upon the question of adopting new textbooks in all

DECLARE SOLONS AGREED TO FORGET SHIPPING BILL

Charge Progressives Threatened Filibuster If Attempt Was Made to Force Measure Out.

REPUBLICAN HEADS
FEAR EXTRA SESSION

Conceded in Political Circles That Measure Has No Chance of Passage at Present Session.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 24.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Although republican leaders of the senate continue to keep the ship subsidy bill off the calendar, with spasmodic discussion arising now and then, it was conceded in political circles today that the measure has no chance of passage before the adjournment of congress in March, now barely more than five weeks off.

This is the expressed opinion of several democratic and progressive leaders, and is privately concurred in by some of the old guard republicans supporting the bill.

Senator Jones, republican, of Washington, who is in charge of the subsidy fight, announced today that he would ask unanimous consent Thursday for a limitation of debate, with the view of expediting consideration. He will propose that after January 29 all debate in the senate be limited to two hours on the bill proper and 30 minutes on amendments; after February 5, general debate would be restricted to 30 minutes, with only 10 minutes for amendments.

In so much as only one dissenting vote is necessary to kill the proposed cloture rule, it is expected to be rejected in short order.

According to observers, Senator Jones would be the most surprised member of the senate should the limitation of debate be agreed to, realising the opposition that will arise. He is said to be merely following out the plan of keeping the measure before the senate lest some one forget its presence on the calendar.

Say Agreement Reached.

The statement is made that a tacit "gentleman's agreement" exists between administration and democratic senators to allow the bill to remain on the calendar in a dormant state, which virtually means its death. Efforts made to revive it and keep it constantly before the senate are more or less political expedients, indulged as time-savers and for the purpose of saving the administration the embarrassment of having it withdrawn. Manifestly, it is asserted, any attempt to force the measure to a vote would result in a filibuster on the part of progressives opposed to its passage.

Must Continue Cotton as Money Crop in South

Speakers at Agricultural Conference Say Staple Can Be Raised Despite Weevil.

Athens, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—Cotton must continue to be the money crop in the south, it was emphatically brought out at the farmers' agricultural conference here today.

It was further shown that in spite of all that has been attributed to the boll weevil and the havoc that he is playing with the raising of cotton, it still is possible, through the use of certain scientific methods, to produce the staple. It can even be raised without calcium arsenate, one of the speakers declared, although it is generally conceded that the best results are obtained through the use of the poison.

Main Money Crop.

Professor E. C. Westbrook, of the agricultural college, was the principal morning speaker. Basing his remarks on a survey that he has made of conditions throughout the Piedmont belt, he said that cotton has never ceased to be the main money crop for Georgia farmers.

"To be sure," he said, "agriculturalists have realized some money from diversified farming, but their chief source of revenue has been, and must continue to be, cotton." During the past year peanuts was the most lucrative of the other crops, he said.

With interest centering mainly around certain syrup mixtures, discussion became heated as to the value of these and other preparations in fighting the boll weevil.

"We do not recommend the use of syrup mixtures or any other preparation as being better than plain calcium arsenate used in fighting the boll weevil," declared Ira W. Wil-

ISOLATION POLICY NOW THREATENS FARM PROSPERITY

U. S. Growers Pessimistic Over Unstabilized Condition of Moneys in Disrupted Central Europe.

SAY U. S. SHOULD CALL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Declare Farmer, With So Much at Stake, Should Be Represented on Such Body.

BY PAUL SIFTON.

Chicago, January 24.—The farmer is out behind the barn, cussing and praying over the European crisis precipitated by the French invasion of Germany, which he fears may wipe out American agricultural prosperity in 1923.

Cussing the ways of European statesmanship, the evasion of payment by the German industrialists and the inescapable fact that, somehow, $3,500,000,000 of America's farm crops for the coming year must be sold in Europe; praying for some way to settle the reparations muddle so that money will be stabilized, nations disarmed and citizens put back to work at wages that will buy American wheat, cotton, pork and manufactured products—that's the farmer.

Out of the cussing and praying, according to President Oscar E. Bradford, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the farmer has evolved these conclusions:

Say U. S. Action Needed.

1. The United States should take immediate action to ease the tenseness of the European situation. This country has been too long out of European affairs to dictate a solution; the most that can be done—that should be done—is to call an economic conference, possibly along the lines suggested by Senator Borah.

2. The policy of isolation was a mistake and should be recognized as such.

3. In any conference called to reach a settlement of the reparations problem, the focal point of all trouble, countries should be represented by their bankers, business men, workers and farmers, instead of by statesmen and diplomats.

4. Inasmuch as the American farmer has the largest stake in Europe, his $3,500,000,000 yearly export to Europe amounting to more than 50 per cent of American foreign trade, he should have that proportion of representation in the conference.

Will Not Make Expenses.

"We can't get away from it, we farmers will not make expenses next year if our European market is further weakened," Bradford declared.

"The price we set on our margin of exports sets the price we get for our whole crop."

"We admit we don't know much about the European situation, but we are sure of this much: that neither France nor Germany is altogether right; that things are going from bad

FEDERAL RESERVE CONTROL SCORED

System, Under Present Republican Regime, Is Dominated by Politicians, Says Carter E. Talman.

The federal reserve system under the present republican regime is dominated by politicians, Carter E. Talman, of Richmond, Va., president of the American Institute of Banking, stated in an interview prior to his address before the Atlanta chapter of the institute at the Capital City club Wednesday night.

Commenting on appointments that have been made since the republicans came into power, Mr. Talman stated that the system could not survive as a national institution unless politics ceased to enter into the system of government.

"When the system was organized," Mr. Talman said, "neither politics nor politicians had a hand in its affairs. The action of the republicans in playing politics in connection with the system is vied with forbidding in many quarters."

Action Comes as Protest Against Conviction of Industrialists by French Court-Martial.

FRENCH TROOPS WILL SUPPLANT STRIKERS

Five Detachments of Railway Workers Already on Journey to Ruhr Valley.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Workmen's union calls general strike in Ruhr as protest of court-martial verdicts.

Conditions in the Ruhr are improving for the occupying forces. The mines are in operation to 85 per cent of their capacity, the railroad services are reported to be well up to the standard, and in general there is less tension evident in the industrial towns. The trial at Mayence of a number of industrial leaders, including Fritz Thyssen, has ended without dramatic incident. The Germans were condemned to the payment of a comparatively small fine for disobedience of orders. Dr. Schlusier, of the state finance department, and Dr. Von Raiffeisen, president of the state mines administration, were condemned to a year imprisonment under a suspended sentence.

France is preparing to take over control of the railroads, and for emergency purposes is mobilizing her own railroad workers, who will be put into service in the Ruhr, in case the Germans go on strike.

Premier Poincare at Paris, in conference with the heads of his technical departments, is preparing to send reinforcements to the occupied territory and at the same time the French authorities have in mind the cutting off of the Ruhr region from all communication with outside sections of Germany.

There are rumors that General Weyand, Marshal Foch's chief of staff, will be appointed high commissioner for the Ruhr.

The French president, M. Millerand, in an address to representatives of the league of patriots, announced that France was determined to compel respect for treaties.

RAIL WORKERS
CALL GENERAL STRIKE.

Paris, January 24.—After the verdict of the court martial in the trial of the German industrialists at Mayence was announced, says a dispatch to the Matin from Dusseldorf, the workmen's unions in the Ruhr took important action. The railway men declared a general strike, to begin at midnight, but the strike became practically effective on all the Ruhr lines beginning at 8 o'clock, all trains being stopped as they arrived at stations.

ORDER RAIL WORKERS
SENT TO RUHR.

Paris, January 24.—The ministry of war today issued a communication to the effect that five detachments of railroad workers, each of 750 men, had been sent to the Ruhr, owing to the persistent strike movement on the German railways.

"It is not," the communication says, "a question, as stated by some of the newspapers, of a mobilization measure, but of assembling of the men for a period of instruction of limited duration."

INVADING FORCES TO BE LARGER

Paris, January 24.—Premier Poincaré is continuing his daily conference with the heads of the technical departments concerned in the occupation of the Ruhr with reference to reinforcement of the contingents already there, which, it is said in official circles, must necessarily be larger than at first contemplated because of German resistance.

Official figures placed the number at present in the Ruhr district at about 45,000 troops, 50 French engineers and 12 Italian and 12 Belgian engineers. Others will be sent forward as rapidly as needed.

The necessity of contracting the technical forces and guarding troops in the Ruhr under one command, is felt, and it is thought probable tonight by persons close to the premier that General Weygand, Marshal Foch's chief of staff, will be given supreme command, with the title of high commissioner for the Ruhr.

M. Le Troquer, minister of public works, who had a considerable part in organizing the engineers, will probably visit the Ruhr for a short period, so that he can make a first hand report to the cabinet. Reports are current that one of the most conspicuous steel manufacturers in France has been asked to go to Essen. This is taken to mean that M. Poincaré is determined, if necessary, to operate the works there, as well as the mines, if the Germans continue to stand out.

GERMANS CONTINUE RESISTANCE POLICY.

Düsseldorf, January 24.—With their eyes turned toward the Mayence court-martial, the Germans in the Ruhr today continued their policy of resistance by refusing to obey the orders of the forces of occupation, while the French proceeded to further repressive measures.

The number of expulsions of officials since midnight of January 20 now totals 23. The director of customs of the Dortmund district has been arrested, thus recording the first incarceration since the industrial magnates were taken into custody last Saturday and held for trial by court-martial.

The instructions received in the Ruhr from the minister of posts and telegraphs in Berlin to decline to afford any telephonic communication requested by the French military has been countered by the French, who have taken charge of the Bochum, Dortmund and Essen telephone exchanges and are operating them.

stituted in all public schools of the country.

In addition to the saving plan feature, lectures will be made on matters relating to financial subjects, by representative leaders in this profession, each week, it was stated.

The idea is to develop the minds of boys and girls along thrift lines so they will profit in later years from this training. After they have graduated from schools and have gone into the world to shift for themselves, it is then that we expect to have our work pay dividends.

After a student has accumulated in his individual savings the sum of $5, the bank will pay him interest on this amount at the regular savings account rate, it was stated.

Washington, January 24.—Allotment of $65,000 from current river and harbor appropriation funds for maintenance and improvement work on Oklawaha river, Georgia, was announced today by the army engineer corps. fluents brought to bear. In the event the democrats defeat the republicans in 1924, the evils wrought during the four preceding years can be eliminated. If the situation is reversed the public alone can prevent political pressure being brought to bear in the government of the reserve system.

Mr. Talman stated that it was the purpose of the American Institute of Banking, through its nation-wide educational plan, to emphasize the need of banking as politics and to make politicians afraid to meddle with a financial institution so vital to a nation's welfare.

The American Institute of Banking was organized 20 years ago, and has since grown to a national institution with 53,000 members, 30,000 of which are enrolled in the institute's study plan.

The institute is affiliated with the American Bankers' association, the membership consisting of bankers and employees, whereas the latter organization's membership includes only banks.

Outlines Purpose. The institute, Mr. Talman said: "Generally speaking the aim of the institute is to make a profession out of the banking business. The idea is that soon be past when bankers will seek the services of a man merely because he happened to be a successful shoe salesman."

The institute is conducting classes in economics, legal phases of the business, and fundamental banking in 140 cities in the United States. Enrolled in the classes are students ranging from clerks to senior executives.

"Until now the institute has been in the stages of development. It has now reached maturity, and will wield a tremendous power within the course of a few years. Mr. Vanderbilt, president of the National City Bank of New York, stated in a public address some time ago that the American bankers were a group of 'economic illiterates.' The statement caused great consternation among the nation's bankers; but what he said was true."

"The American Banking Institute seeks to make economic illiterates a thing of the past, and to raise the business of banking to a plane parallel with that of a surgeon or a barrister."

Rapid Growth Predicted. "I am convinced that four years hence the membership of the institute will number 100,000. At present there is a chapter in every important banking center in the country. Ultimately the activities of the organization will extend to every small city and hamlet in the country."

Mr. Talman's visit to Atlanta was made for the purpose of adding impetus to the interest already taken in the Atlanta chapter of the institute, of which Harry S. Cohen, vice president of the Citizens' and Southern bank, is president.

On his present trip Mr. Talman visited virtually every city of importance in the south. He is a resident of Richmond, Va., and holds the position of assistant cashier of the American National bank. The headquarters of the institute are in New York city. Mr. Talman was elected president of the organization at the 1922 Portland, Oregon, convention.

Aid Other Companies.

The Tennessee Power company telegraphed that its line on the Oconee had given away. The Southern Power company wired that all its plants south of Spartanburg, S. C., are out of commission, and the Central Georgia Power company wired for power on its line between Hampton and Jackson. All these requests for power are now being filled by the Georgia Railway and Power company, the total amounting to about 15,000 horsepower.

The power company officials stated that there are a number of repairs on small residence lines to yet be adjusted, but added that they expect to have the entire lighting system receiving normal service by Thursday morning.

Large forces of extra men were kept busy repairing the damage and all steam reserves of the power company were put into action.

According to reports from other points in the storm area north Georgia has suffered less than the others.

Locust Grove Dark.

Locust Grove, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—Locust Grove still is suffering from the effects of a bad sleet and rain storm here Tuesday.

The town is in total darkness, the accumulation of ice on the electric power line having broken the source of electricity.

Trees, telephone and light wires in the town are down, and crews are working hard to clear up the debris.

Until the electric power line is repaired "curfew law" while not enforced by the law officers, is being enforced by the total darkness. The only lights here are from the few candles and lamps that remain.

Storm Hits Elberton.

Elberton, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—The sudden sleet storm which struck Elberton yesterday and last night did a considerable amount of damage to buildings and trees. The streets were filled with fallen limbs and trees, evergreens seeming to be worst hurt.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES COURT ADJOURNMENT.

Griffin, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—Spending superior court adjourned Tuesday afternoon until Thursday on account of the stormy weather. This week is being devoted to criminal cases, the civil cases having been disposed of last week. An unusually heavy docket is facing this court.

WANTS ARSENATE FREE FROM DUTY

Senator Harris Introduces Bill to Take Boll Weevil Poison Out of Class of Chemical Salt.

Washington, January 24.—Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, today introduced a bill providing that calcium arsenate, used to fight the cotton boll weevil, be placed on the tariff free list. He has conferred with the tariff commission and the customs division of the treasury department, where he learned that a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem is assessed on calcium arsenate by classifying it as a "chemical salt."

Senator Harris said large supplies of calcium arsenate in Germany were available for export to the United States if no duty was imposed. He said the debates in the house and senate, when the tariff bill was under discussion, clearly showed that congress did not intend to place a tariff on calcium arsenate, as white arsenic, the main ingredient of calcium arsenate, was put on the free list after both the house ways and means and senate finance committees recommended duties.

ROSS IS ACQUITTED OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Macon, Ga., January 24.—(Special.) A verdict of acquittal was returned in Bibb superior court today in the case of L. J. Ross, charged with assault and battery in connection with the beating of D. S. Pinkston, his aged brother-in-law.

It was stated that Ross was one of a band of hooded men who took Pinkston from his home last November and flogged him with a heavy leather tug. Ross was identified by Pinkston as one of his assailants.

Candler for his attitude in the erection of the $6,000,000 Atlanta-Biltmore hotel. An effort was made to send the resolution to the building trades council, but it was finally adopted by a good majority. The resolution highly commended Mr. Candler for his stand upon the question of employing Atlanta and Georgia workmen and home materials in this job.

A resolution was adopted deploring the narcotic evil and in favor of an anti-narcotic law in the south.

After a highly interesting address on the Georgia Child home, R. B. McCord, of Atlanta, secured from the president of the federation assurance that this work would receive financial and moral support of the central labor body.

Rev. Firley Baun, who also spoke on the children's home, gave many interesting statistics and much interesting information concerning the work of the new law regarding the adoption of orphans and their reception into homes.

state schools, which the legislature requires shall be uniform and be adopted for a period of five years. Since the law requires that new books be adopted before November 1 of this year, the board decided to consider the matter next September.

Action upon the proposed raising of standards required of teachers applying for first-grade licenses, was taken, it being decided that in future every applicant, before being given a first-grade license, must pass an examination, scoring at least 90 per cent, must prove to have graduated from a high school, or, if not such a graduate, must have had at least four years teaching experience. This new ruling, it was said, would not interfere with any teachers already holding first-grade license, issued in the past.

The action of the Jefferson county board in recommending that the $1,000 from the state educational aid fund be given to Louisville High school was approved after full hearing before the state board. There are two high schools in Jefferson county and the board stressed the fact, in its comment, that both made an excellent showing, were splendid schools in every respect, and that its approval of the Louisville award meant absolutely no reflection upon the standards of the other high school at Wrens.

Wednesday's meeting was attended by the full membership of the state board, which includes Governor Hardwick, Chancellor D. C. Barrow, Dr. G. R. Glenn, Dr. E. J. Forrester, Dr. Rufus W. Weaver and State School Superintendent M. M. Parks.

liams, head of the state bureau of entomology.

"These mixtures, if applied before the squares form, will kill the weevil. So will calcium arsenate as dust. After the squares are formed, the dust is better."

Four essentials were pointed out by Mr. Williams in Georgia's battle to grow cotton in face of boll weevil conditions. "These are," he stated, "good farming, which means farming adapted to the particular section and the nature of the soil; use of sufficient nitrogen in fertilization; pedigreed cotton seed, adapted to the locality, and the intelligent use of poisons."

Speaking along the same lines, George A. Maloney, of the national department of agriculture, asserted that hard work, good fertilizer, good cultivation and good seed are the things that will bring success in the fight against the weevil.

"We want to forget the boll weevil just as much as we can," he concluded, "and grow cotton just as if there were no such pest. It can be done. It was done last year in other states, in states that used far less calcium arsenate than was used in Georgia."

H. E. Savelly, extension field agent of the United States department of agriculture, commended very highly the program worked out by Dr. A. M. Soule for controlling the weevil in Georgia. The work of Mr. Conwell, president of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Co-operative association, also was extolled.

Restore Prosperity.

Carl Williams, president of the American Cotton Growers' association, declared that the problem of the farmer is "to restore the prosperity of the farmer's dollar, and that is what he is trying to do in this economic revolution that has swept over this country for the past few days."

Pleading for co-operative marketing in Georgia, he recalled the case of Oklahoma, in which state, he said, $25 a bale had been saved on every bale of cotton marketed through the organization.

The morning session today was presided over by C. A. Cobb, editor of The Southern Ruralist.

Roger Miller, of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, appeared on the program this afternoon and held the attention of his audience with a forceful address, showing how the chamber of commerce of the United States played an important part in helping farmers with their problems.

Relates Trip.

Dr. Soule recounted interesting phases of his recent trip to South America where he went to the international industrial and agricultural conference as a representative of the United States. He said that the cotton fever is spreading to many nations, notably Brazil and China, and unless the United States reduces its acreage and increases its production it will lose its place as the greatest of the cotton producing countries.

Governor-elect Clifford N. Walker will be the principal speaker at the sessions here tomorrow. Dr. L. G. Hardeman, of Commerce, will preside at this session.

subcommittee of seventeen and submitted this morning to the whole conference, which has been in session here about a week after transfer of the parley from Chicago.

The tri-state field produces about 30 per cent of the nation's 500,000,000 annual bituminous tonnage. Signing up of the rest of the territory was regarded as a mere formality.

The conferees fixed January 8, 1924, as a date for reconvening to draw up an agreement to cover the year beginning April 1, 1924.

The agreement calls for $7.50 for 8 hours for day work and $1.05 per ton for contract miners. The contract is for one year instead of two, as the union had sought.

"If we don't, Germany's mortgages will be foreclosed one after the other and the country dismembered. At some place along the line Germany will balk. When that time comes—well, I think we should try to prevent that catastrophe. It is in plain sight and every farmer can see it."

and thereby tie up consideration of the important appropriation bills, defeat of which might give rise to the necessity of calling an extra session—a matter the president is trying to avoid.

While the subsidy has been before the senate ever since its passage by the house shortly after the present session commenced, no serious effort has been made to force its consideration. It gave way to the appropriation bills and to rural credits legislation. Even the Norris bill, which republican leaders never had any intention of passing or permitting to reach the voting stage, was placed ahead of the subsidy for a few days, while the agricultural legislation was being reported out by the committee.

The senate to date has passed all but three of the big appropriation bills. The treasury, state and justice, commerce and labor and navy appropriation bills have been signed by the president. The postoffice, agricultural and independent offices bills have passed both houses and now are in conference committees, and the interior department bill is at the white house awaiting the president's signature. Those remaining are the District of Columbia bill, now before the senate, and the war and executive bills, which are pending in the senate committees. The Lenroot-Anderson rural credits bill will also come up, but no difficulty will be encountered in passing this measure, it is said.

This would seem to indicate that the calendar will be cleared in time to give further consideration to the subsidy. In answer to this, however, progressive leaders have let it be known that some of the appropriation bills are of such nature that a prolonged discussion might be warranted. Observers take this as a veiled hint that any serious discussion of the measure will not be permitted, planning to extend the consideration of remaining appropriation measures if that course is necessary to kill time between now and March.

Although members of the commerce committee, which reported out the bill, still claim there is a margin of four or five votes in favor of its passage, President Harding is said to have become reconciled to the ultimate failure of the subsidy. He is represented as realizing the legislative jam which opponents have thrown around it and the almost impossible chance to bring it to a vote.

Some time ago the president was represented as preferring the senate to remove the bill from the calendar if no action was planned. Senate leaders, however, did not consider it expedient to follow the suggestions, choosing to let it go over in "orderly" fashion, which would serve to relieve the situation of an embarrassing aspect.

JOHN M. SLATON WILL ADDRESS MERCHANTS

Retailers' Program for Annual Meeting at Capital City Club Complete.

Former Governor John M. Slaton will deliver the feature address at the annual meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association Thursday evening, dinner Capital City club, on the subject "The retail merchant's responsibility to his city and state."

Mr. Slaton will deal with the reciprocal obligations arising out of a merchant's identification with the civic life of his city and state, touching not only the merchant's duty towards his community but the indebtedness of the community in many ways to the merchant. His address will be supplemented by five-minute talks from each of the five past presidents of the association on the subject "The A. R. M. A.—its past, present and future."

The past presidents are Ivan E. Allen, W. M. Brownlee, J. P. Allen, W. W. Orr and P. J. Paxon, each of whom will touch upon the aims and ideals of the association and its accomplishments in the interest of Atlanta's retail trade.

The regular program of addresses will be preceded by a course dinner, and a musical program. A large number of the members of the association have donated a number of prizes which will be drawn during the course of the meeting.

There will be a contest for the selection of a suitable slogan for the association. The member originating the most suitable slogan will receive a beautiful hand engraved, framed certificate from the association.

The officers for 1923 will be elected at this meeting. A nominating committee has the matter in charge.

Several surprise stunts will be included on the program.

Mayor Sims Gratified Over Generosity Shown by Citizens.

BY W. H. WIMPEE.

Atlanta's characteristic big-heartedness that has never failed when a worthy cause has come to light, or some particular need of a charitable nature made known, was clearly exemplified Wednesday when a deluge of checks, cash and articles of wearing apparel poured into the city hall for distribution to the city's needy and unfortunate, in response to an appeal appearing in The Constitution, Wednesday morning from Mayor Walter A. Sims.

The money and clothing was turned over to City Warden W. H. Johnson, who was instructed by the mayor to aid all worthy causes of suffering in Atlanta, which was caused principally from the blizzard that struck the city so unexpectedly Tuesday morning, and from the light epidemic of influenza that has raged hereabouts during the last three weeks.

City Warden Johnson busied himself all Wednesday in providing food, clothing and fuel to those appealing to him for these most essential things. Before aiding them, however, Mr. Johnson investigated each case so as to be certain that those applying for aid actually needed it.

The money contributed by Atlanta's philanthropic citizens aided tremendously in the emergency, for as Mayor Sims stated, the city's appropriation for this purpose is limited.

From the time Mayor Sims reached his office in the city hall Wednesday morning until late in the afternoon, telephone calls were received by him from persons desiring to aid sufferers from the cold and sickness. One prominent banker, who can always be counted upon in such an emergency sent his check for $50 to the mayor. Another generous-hearted Atlanta told the mayor that he would be glad to aid as many sufferers as the mayor recommended. All such offers as well as funds contributed, were referred to Mr. Johnson.

"I am proud to be an Atlantan."

Associated Charities state that they are facing the most critical situation in years and that workers are using every possible means of administering to all the needy. Many cases of influenza were reported as growing desperately worse as a result of the weather and lack of coal.

The American Rescue Workers have been swamped with needy persons, and several families who had been living in tents near Lakewood were forced to forsake their scanty quarters, according to Colonel Horace Burton.

Power Company Plans to Lessen Tenth Day Rush

"Continuous Billing" System Is Asked in Petition Just Filed.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Djever stand in line, down in the gas building, with your monthly electric light bill in your hand, tightly clutched alongside a wrinkled, hard-earned five spot on the tenth day of any month?

Djever cuss and cuss and cuss, as the line slowly moved forward and you drew nearer to the end of the wasted time, waiting to pay a bill and grab off that 10 per cent discount?

Djever vow that in future you would come early enough in the month to miss the last minute crowds of procrastinators?

And—djever live up to that resolution?

Well, the Georgia Railway and Power company is planning to save you all this waiting in line business in the future.

A petition was filed with the Georgia public service commission Wednesday asking permission to change the method of billing gas and electric customers in Atlanta, Decatur, Kirkwood, East Lake, Hapeville, College Park and other towns.

The company wants to put in what is known as the "continuous billing" system. No, I mean that isn't as bad as it sounds. It doesn't mean that you'll have to continuously pass out your hard-earned funds to the company. What it means is this:

The company, in future, wants to send you your bill just as soon after the man with the pocket torch has been around to your house, and read your meter, as "bookkeeping practice" will allow. Then you will get your ten per cent discount if you pay the bill within ten days after it is rendered.

There are more than 68,000 electric meter customers in this territory now. It is impossible to read all these meters on the same day or within the same week for that matter. In fact, it takes the readers all month to get around.

So if the commission gives permission for the new plan it will mean that instead of half Atlanta pouring down to the office to pay its bill on the tenth of the month, there will be a steady, but not congested, stream of bill payers on every day the office is open.

Also, it might be mentioned, it doesn't make much difference what time of the month most of us pay our bills. We used to get monthly checks.

Nowadays, however, the great majority of us spell that, Mr. Linotype) wage. And the man who gets his monthly, generally pays his bill by a mailed check, thus dodging the waiting-in-line stuff.

HUBBARD WAS ASLEEP

Marshals Bring Defendant Into U. S. Court.

When the case of T. O. Hubbard, charged with violating the federal strike injunction, was called in United States district court Wednesday morning, he was sleeping at his rooming house near the Inman yards.

Marshals were sent after him, he was brought into court, and put under $1,000 bond for his appearance in court Thursday.

Hubbard was indicted in connection with the beating of William Stanley Hill, a Tech student, who was spirited off by a band in an automobile during the recent railway strike and badly beaten.

Deputy Marshals Adair and Cobb were dispatched to the rooming house where they were informed that Hubbard was not in. They insisted, with the result that they were shown into his room, where he was sound asleep. It was brought out that he was working at night.

CUBAN EMBASSY DENIES BOOZE SALE

Dr. Aleida Expresses Surprise at Charges That Legation Attaches Sold Liquor to Bootleggers.

Washington, January 24.—By the Associated Press.—Published reports that some of the "embassy liquor" seized in a recent police raid here came from the Cuban legation resulted today in a visit by the Cuban charge to the state department and a public statement by him in which he said he was in entire ignorance of any "alleged selling of liquor" at the legation.

The legation charge, Dr. Arturo Padro Aleida, inquired at the department as to the truth of the published stories that his legation was named in an affidavit made by John H. Lynch, described by police officials as a middleman between diplomatic liquor sources and Washington bootleggers. The Cuban official is understood to have been told that no such information had been laid before the department officially.

After Dr. Aleida's return from the department, this statement was given out at the legation:

"The charge went this morning to the state department, and had an interview with Under Secretary Phillips in reference to the publications in the papers of the story of alleged selling of liquor at the Cuban legation."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, and emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is an emulsified croscote with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist—(adv.)

A COLD GONE IN FEW HOURS

"Pape's Cold Compound" Acts Quick, Costs Little, Never Recurs!

In a few hours your cold is gone, head and nose clear, no feverishness, headache, or stuffed-up feeling. Druggists here guarantee these pleasant tablets to break up a cold or the gripes quicker than nasty quinine. They never make you sick or uncomfortable. Buy a box of "Pape's Cold Compound" for a few cents and get rid of your cold right now.—(adv.)

Upshaw Declares Several Embassies In Bootleg Trade

Says Liquor War Has Just Started on Foreign Legations in U. S.

Member of Congress from Georgia. Washington, January 24.—Revelations subsequent to my first speech in the house of representatives concerning the abuse of the prohibition laws by drinking officials have been sufficient to demonstrate fully both the truth and the necessity of my utterance.

The arrest of a gilded bootlegger and the consequent startling revelations of liquor leakage from the Cuban legation is ample verification of the warning I sounded last week. And this is only the beginning. That there are other foreign legations and embassies that have been made the distributing centers of bootleg liquor is clearly evident. Whether they will unload their stocks as a result of fright or be soon apprehended are eventualities that will be welcomed in either case by the friends of sobriety and clean government.

Of course, the United States government covets the good fellowship of all nations maintaining representation in Washington, but such flagrant abuse of diplomatic immunity stirs America's blood to the boiling point. This abuse is common knowledge and if it does not immediately stop, these offending foreign legations and embassies may expect legislation that will constitute an ultimatum on the part of the United States.

Ask Appropriation For Army Hospital At Fort Benning

Washington, January 24.—The Senate appropriation sub-committee has been asked by Secretary of War Weeks to add to the army appropriation bill a number of items to provide for army work in the Hawaiian Islands and at other posts, including $800,000 for construction at Fort Sam Houston, Texas; $200,000 at Fort Myers, Va.; it became known today.

Other items requested by the secretary include $588,000 for construction of secondary storage plants in the Panama Canal zone; $200,000 for the installation of a heating system and $275,000 for construction of a hospital at Fort Benning, Ga.; $85,000 for barracks at Langley Field, Va.; $35,000 for officers' quarters at Camp Alfred, Va.; N. J. The $800,000 request for Fort Sam Houston is for continuing work already begun.

Russian Refugee Ships Crawl Into Manila After Trying Voyage

Manila, January 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Wireless advice received here this evening from Taiwan, Formosa, said that three of the missing Russian refugee ships, en route to Manila from Shanghai, had put in there short of fuel. The message added that two others were following closely and that the remaining two were returning to Shanghai.

was on this date that Daniel and Richard were kidnapped near Bastrop. The evidence, it is said, later told Marshall Mott, a student at the University of Mississippi, that while in his disabled car an automobile full of Russian refugees, some of whom were apparently masked men and two others who were apparently prisoners passed him bound toward the lake.

Some time later, it is said he will testify, the truck with the hooded men but without the prisoners returned, bound in the direction from whence it came.

Jones recently was located by agents of the department of justice who had conducted almost a nation wide search for him and the office of Attorney General Clegg has been delaying the taking of his testimony until the last.

Few witnesses were on the stand today and had Jones been present the hearing would have been concluded before mid-afternoon.

Neil O'Brien's Minstrels.

(At the Atlanta Theater.)

Neil O'Brien's minstrels, which will appear at the Atlanta theater tonight, when they begin an engagement of three nights and Saturday matinee, has become one of the biggest organizations of its kind on the American stage and undoubtedly the most prosperous. In fact it is frequently referred to these days as a "national institution." This year Mr. O'Brien proposes that his great American minstrels shall be the best that has been put forth in its career. He has been at work gathering the material for many weeks prior to the opening date and in selecting the members of the company has spared no expense. In the list of the comedians and end men are Jay Clay, Jack (Smoke) Gray, Frank (Cracker) Quinn, Fred Miller, Stephen Oudek and Jack Overholt. These merry men will supply the jokes in the first part and play the principal comedy parts in the after pieces. The retinue of vocalists and balladeers is an imposing one. The names of the principal singers are: L. Lester Hakerkorn, W. F. Elliott, Henri Marshall, Hugo Angelo, Davy Marshall, Charles Wright, Jack Hillbrook, Rich and Flourney, Perry Rogers, Jimmy Johnson, Edward Owens and William McFee. The interlocutor or middle man will be Eddie Karl and the orchestra will be presided over by Edward Cuperio.

Mr. O'Brien has made somewhat of a departure in the olio or second part of the program in that he is giving this season several short comedy sketches. The first of these is called "Rufus in the Lion's Den," a serene and on-the-spot farce in which Frank (Cracker) Quinn will play the leading role, that of a southern dandy who is looking for a job in the circus and reluctantly goes into the lion's den as a substitute for the regular trainer. This will bring back to the audience happy recollections of the days when they really enjoyed going to the menagerie. Another sketch is called "Put and Take Bankers," a title suggestive enough in itself and which was written by Mr. O'Brien. Another one-act sketch is called "A Certain Party," a big scenic affair in three scenes, the principal one being a swamp in the wilds of Florida, which was written by Artemus Callaway and which is described as a mixture of mystery and uncertainty, a burlesque on the popular drama of the present day. There is a big song and dance number called "In Days of Old" which brings in songs popular in the long ago such as "Silver Threads Among the Gold," "When You and I Were Young," "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party" and others once well known and sung everywhere.

Despite rainy weather Atlanta theatergoers have come to see "Getting Gertie's Garter," this week's presentation of the Forsyth Players. The play is filled with situations humorous enough in themselves the Forsyth Players, including Belle Bennett star, John Littel, leading man, Gus Forbes and Hankin Mansfield, and delightful bits of wit and laughter that provides continuous laugh through the three acts.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" can rightly be said one of the few top-line comedies of the American stage.

Keith Vaudeville. (At the Lyric.)

One of the nation's best known and most widely heralded jazz organizations opens at the Lyric Thursday night with a new program of vaudeville, the latter part of the week. It hails from old Virginia and is declared to be the last word in the rendition of the Virginia jazziests, not only play all the late dance tunes but they do not forget that there are lovers of other kinds of music in their audience or that the comedy element should be overlooked. Their program is just as varied as it is excellently executed.

Loew's Vaudeville. (At the Grand.)

A complete change of program will be offered at Loew's Grand theater today and tonight. The motion picture program as well as the vaudeville being entirely different from that of the first half of the week.

The retinue of vocalists and balladeers is an imposing one. The names of the principal singers are: L. Lester Hakerkorn, W. F. Elliott, Henri Marshall, Hugo Angelo, Davy Marshall, Charles Wright, Jack Hillbrook, Rich and Flourney, Perry Rogers, Jimmy Johnson, Edward Owens and William McFee. The interlocutor or middle man will be Eddie Karl and the orchestra will be presided over by Edward Cuperio.

ATLANTA SHRINERS TO HOLD CEREMONY IN ELBERTON SOON

Elberton, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—Yanab Temple, of Atlanta, will hold a ceremonial session in Elberton, February 27. The ceremony will be held in the afternoon after a parade.

This will be followed by a banquet and at night Yanab's famous minstrel band will give one of its unique entertainments. The session and entertainment will be in the new high school auditorium.

A special train will be run from Atlanta, and the largest crowd of Shriners ever gathered in northeast Georgia is expected. The Elberton Shrine club will be host, and is making every possible arrangement to make the day and night a great success.

ATLANTA FIRMS GIVEN CONTRACTS FOR HIGHWAYS

Columbus, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—Subject to approval by the division federal engineer contract has been awarded to the Finley Company of Atlanta at $89,000, to build about three miles of the Columbus Highway. This section of the road will have asphalt surface and clay gravel base.

Contract was awarded to the Municipal Engineering and Construction Company of Atlanta at $29,934 to build two concrete bridges on the road. The city board of school trustees has recommended the city commissioner issuance of a $600,000 of bonds for school improvements. Nearly $500,000 of the issue would be used in buying site and building a modern high school. It is planned to buy an entire city block.

COLUMBUS WILL ADVERTISE CITY

Columbus, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—The Columbus Chamber of Commerce today considered a plan for raising $100,000 for advertising this city. A company which specializes in work of this nature was engaged to make a survey to see if it would meet the requirements. Prospects are that a program of publicity covering a period of years will be launched.

Colonel Hamer R. McClatchey was re-elected president of the chamber of commerce. He has not yet accepted re-election, but has the matter under advisement.

"The World's Applause." (At the Howard.)

A cast of exceptional excellence even for a de Mille production, was assembled for his latest Paramount picture production—"The World's Applause," featuring Rebe Daniels and Lewis Stone, which is being shown at the Howard theater. This is a delightful picture with a timely theme, produced according to the highest de Mille standards.

The supporting roles are filled by such well-known players as Adolphe Menjou, Winter Hall, Brandon Hurst, Bernice Frank, Mayme Kelso, George Kuwa and James Neil.

"Lorna Doone." (At the Metropolitan.)

It required four cameras, instead of the customary two, to film "Lorna Doone." Some of the action scenes were so difficult and costly to stage that the producer was unwilling to risk any chances that re-takes would be necessary and kept four camera men busy.

To a delightful daughter of the "Maggie Wood" so Rex Hunter, author of "Stuff o' Dreams" and other plays, has inscribed a copy of his volume which he sent to Madge Bellamy, star of "Lorna Doone," now playing at the Metropolitan theater. Mr. Hunter saw Miss Bellamy when she was playing in "Dear Brutus" with Wm. Gillette, and this was his appreciation of her work in that play.

At the age of 73, Mrs. Kendal, the celebrated English actress, still appears frequently in public.

Atlanta Enjoys Snow Sensation On Diet of Sleet

Scene Declared Identical With "Snowfalls" in Cities of East.

There are no doubt many Atlantans who have not enjoyed the privilege of a "White Christmas," or may not even one inch of snow with all its sport, but these should not be disheartened for they have just emerged perhaps unconsciously from just such sensations that are felt by those who sometimes see snow six or seven times a year.

When the sleet began enveloping the city with its white blanket Tuesday there were many shivers and remarks of "B-E-R," but this ice is piercing. These first sensations are not truly those felt when soft white flakes begin to float gently toward Mother Earth.

Still when the trees, sidewalks, roofs of house, telephone lines have been covered with the white icy mass of sleet, people then begin to experience the same sensations that follow a nice little "snowstorm."

So, those who have waited that they have never had the experience of enjoying a real snow are mistaken, for Atlantans "enjoyed" a veritable snow feast.

First, it will be remembered how the feet as they stepped upon this blanket of fine ice, make the soft crunching sound. That was the same sound that feet make when they walk in two inches or more of snow. Then, at night when the late-goers journeyed home, the ice on the trees shone with the light from the street lamps in a few places where the Georgia Railway and Power company had restored service. The scene then was identical with a scene in a far eastern or northern city after a nice snowfall.

Or, Wednesday morning, as you come out of your domicile a soft mushy mass descended on your head, part of which ran down your collar. Snow does the same thing.

And, as you wandered toward the street car line, the same mushy stuff, now beginning to melt and run, filled your shoes with icy water. This is the aftermath, the real "enjoyment" of snow.

All in all, Atlanta "enjoyed" a veritable snowfall.

A. S. ALLEN AWARDED HALF OF COMMISSION

Jury Decides J. F. Roberts Must Divide Tax Collection Fee.

A jury in Fulton superior court Wednesday held that A. S. Allen, of Decatur, a special tax investigator, is entitled to half the fee of $12,500 received by J. F. Roberts, of Greensboro, another investigator, as commission for collecting $25,000 in past due taxes from the Carnegie estate on Cumberland island property near St. Mary's.

Allen was represented by Attorneys Branch and Howard. Albert Howell and Mark Bolding represented the defendant. While engaged in the collection of past due special taxes and ad valorem taxes during the administration of Governor Dorey, the two investigators were assigned certain territories and they entered into contracts with the various counties fixing the percentage of their commissions. In the Allen-Roberts case, tried before Judge E. D. Thomas, Allen contended that he was assigned Camden county, in which is located Cumberland island. Discovering that the Carnegie estate was in arrears in its ad valorem tax he began to negotiate with the county authorities for the collection of the taxes. Without his knowledge, he said, Roberts arrived in Camden county, learned of the Carnegie taxes and secured a contract for their collection for 33 1-3 per cent commission. After collecting the sum of $37,500 he deducted his commission and remitted the remainder to the county. Allen stated that when he protested to Roberts the latter agreed to divide the commission with him. Roberts denied having made the agreement. The jury was out only a short time before it reached a verdict.

CARTER CONVICTED FOR DEATH OF GIRL

Baxley Broker Must Serve
One to Three Years for Alleged Connection With Teacher's Death.

Brunswick, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—S. Harold Carter, well-known Baxley county cotton broker, must serve from one to three years in the state penitentiary, according to a jury which tried him in the Glynn superior court on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the death in this city on December 8, of Miss Alma Crosby, pretty 22-year-old school teacher of Baxley who passed away at the City hospital following an alleged illegal operation.

The case took up all of Tuesday in the court and was given to the jury Tuesday night. The 12 men failed to arrive at a verdict during the night but shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, they returned to the court room and the verdict was read.

Carter was sentenced to serve from one to three years in the penitentiary by Judge Hightsmith. The court room was packed when the jury came in and announced that they had reached a verdict.

Carter, who all during the trial had appeared in the best of spirits, for the first time wore an agonized look upon his face, and as the verdict was read he plainly showed that he was disappointed. It was stated today that attorneys representing Carter would at once ask for a new trial.

Interest at High Pitch.
People from Baxley composed a large percentage of the audience in the court room, and interest throughout the trial was at high pitch. Every word of evidence was eagerly sought by the large crowd.

Mrs. L. W. Crosby, mother of the dead school teacher, was among the first witnesses placed on the stand by the state. With her face still showing evidence of her great sorrow over the death of her daughter, which followed that of her husband by only a year, she told the jury all that she knew about the case.

"Harold Carter told me over Alma's coffin that if ever I opened my mouth he would kill me," dramatically declared Mrs. Crosby, during the examination.

Later she testified that she was with her daughter when the end came and that the last words of her dying child were directed to Carter: "You've a rocky road to travel, Harold Carter."

With tears in her eyes she charged that Carter "had wrecked her home and Alma's life."

Physicians and trained nurses at the hospital where Miss Crosby died first were called by the state to establish that the death was the direct result of an illegal operation.

Physician Testifies.
Dr. J. A. Dunwoody stated that he was called in to see the ill teacher at the hospital, and that she was seriously affected with a high temperature and evidences of an operation. Septic infection was given as the direct cause of her death.

On cross-examination the physician declared that he could not say how long the operation had been performed, and after answering several technical questions, he said the young woman could have performed the operation herself.

Miss Mary Motiers, superintendent of nurses at the hospital, pointed out Carter as the man who came to the hospital with Miss Crosby, giving his name as S. H. Crosby, and saying the young woman was his wife.

She said that during the teacher's illness the defendant came and went at intervals and was present when she died. The mother of Miss Crosby came to the hospital an hour before she died, and was accompanied by Carter. The mother of Miss Crosby then followed and was on the stand for some time.

She said that her daughter left home in Baxley on the day before Thanksgiving and the next time she saw her was an hour before she died. She said that upon her arrival here Carter insisted that she call him Mr. Crosby. "You know she is my wife," she said he told her. "He already had a wife and children, and I knew better."

Continuing, she said that Carter ran away to Florida with her daughter.

Accused Carter.
"My girl recognized me when I reached the hospital, and she told me she was going to die," Alma then told me all and said she was so sorry. It was then that she told me that Harold Carter was the cause of her death."

In his statement, Carter admitted that he had been to Florida with Miss Crosby and had been with her on a number of occasions. He denied bringing her to Brunswick and placing her in a hospital, however.

He said that he had been in Florida on a trip and was on his way to Brunswick. When in Waycross he said he met Miss Crosby and she asked that she be permitted to accompany him. On the trip to this city, he said, she became violently ill and from the train she was carried to the hospital.

Physicians were summoned and it was then learned that an illegal operation had been performed. Carter claimed that he knew nothing about the supposed operation.

A number of other witnesses were introduced by the state and it was testified that Carter and Miss Crosby had been on a tour of Florida together and that they had been keeping each other's company for some time.

Revision of Rates On Naval Stores Not Yet Decided

Producers and Carriers Meet February 19 to Try to Reach Agreement.

Naval store producers and carriers, failing to reach any agreement concerning the proposed revision of rates on naval stores coming from sections including the southern pine district to the Ohio river and points of the middle west, adjourned Wednesday night after an all-day session, with the understanding that the same men would meet again here February 19.

The meeting was called as a result of a largely attended meeting held in Savannah Tuesday at which the naval store officials of that section determined to offer opposition against the proposed revision of rates.

Among those present were C. K. Doss, of Louisville, Ky.; O. T. McIntosh, of Savannah; J. W. Morgan, of Savannah; Miller Nightingale, of Savannah; B. S. Brown, of Milledgeville; George H. Baldwin, of Jacksonville; S. B. Mitchell and E. K. Bryan, of Atlanta.

After a general discussion of the proposed revision of rates over which Mr. Doss presided, it was unanimously decided to postpone the matter until a later date at which it will be believed conditions will be more favorable for taking final action.

South Gate Club Will Meet Tonight.
Officers for 1923 of the South Gate Club of Atlanta, a club composed of Southern railway employees who belong to the Masonic order, will be elected at a meeting at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the assembly room of the Southern building. The club, organized about a year ago, has a membership of about 500.

COUNCIL TO DISCUSS RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Definite Plans for Atlanta System to Be Submitted.

Week day religious education, its importance to the youth of today and plans for its establishment in Atlanta will be the topic for discussion at the annual meeting of the Christian Council at Trinity Methodist church to-night. Members of the council will be guests at supper at 6:30 o'clock of ladies of Trinity church, and those in charge of the meeting state that indications point to the largest attendance in the history of the organization.

The success with which the work has met in Detroit makes the address of Dr. Edward R. Bartlett, of that city, of peculiar interest at this time. It is pointed out, and a definite proposition for its establishment in Atlanta will be contained in the report of the council's commission on education.

This commission, of which Dr. B. R. Lacy, Jr., is chairman, has thoroughly investigated the plans in operation in other cities with a view to the formulation of one adapted to Atlanta's needs and conditions.

Election of officers of the council and the executive committee will take place in addition to other business.

Upon completion of studies in the Marine Corps institute in Washington, D. C., recently, Edna Clinton Moore, son of D. A. Moore of Chipley, Ga., was awarded a diploma of proficiency in the foreign trade course, and a letter of praise from Major General LeJuene, commandant of the Marine Corps.

Moore made his home in Chipley before joining the marines at Atlanta in January, 1919. Since that time he has made a trip to France.

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Erythrina senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, castor drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before. Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Enfield, N. C., who is 73, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles Chorman of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps. Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

Eight Other Students of the Southern Business College Go to Good Positions With Some of Atlanta's Leading Firms

Busy Times Around At The Southern, Where Many Are Enrolling For Business Courses.

Enroll now for Business Training. Your chums are getting ahead of you, for during the past few days, among them, the following students of the Southern Shorthand and Business University, 11 Whitehall street, have accepted splendid positions in Atlanta and elsewhere:

Miss Louise Perry, with the Webb Construction Company; L. O. Stephens, with the S. F. Memory Law Firm, Blackshear, Ga.; Miss Thelma Rucker, with the J. K. Orr Shoe Company; Pugh Griffith, with the L. W. Rogers Company; Miss Ruth Miller, with the American National Insurance Company; Miss Pearl Wilcox, with the C. H. Lapsley Accounting firm; Mrs. C. T. Cook, with the Lee Sales Company; A. J. Oakley, with the Excelsior Laundry Company.

Only a few days ago the Southern gave the names of several pupils who had just left school for good positions. Since then the above named students have accepted places as stenographers and bookkeepers with the well-known and reputable firms mentioned.

"Nothing succeeds like Success." The Southern is a big success, because its pupils succeed.

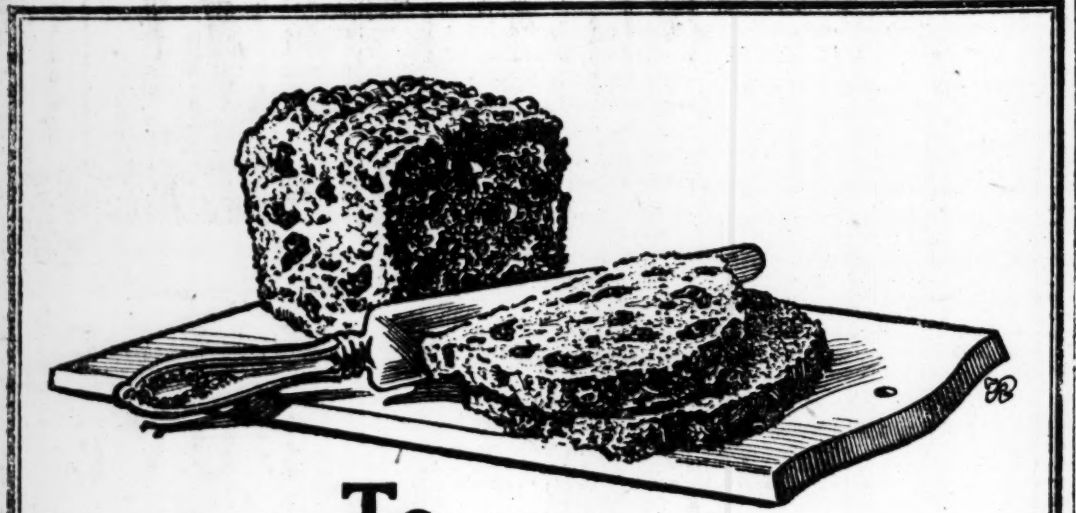

With still another week for the enrollment of pupils before the month ends, the amount of business already done by the Southern Business College up to this date, exceeds by 20 per cent the total month's business of January, 1922, although the business for that month was good.

Don't delay your preparation for positions. Enter the Southern this week or next and get started. Success lies before you. Attend the school that shows results—the "Southern." Address A. C. ## STABBING ENDS FIGHT

Alleged Whipping of Girl Causes Battle Royal.

A free-for-all fight, ending in a stabbing, caused by T. M. Gibby, 62, and his two sons, of 71 Hightower street, interfered with a neighbor who was whipping his daughter, it is claimed, resulted Wednesday in the arrest of one of the sons charged with stabbing and docketing disorderly conduct charges against the father and other brother.

According to Policeman Weaver the fight took place at the home of the man stabbed, John Quinn, 15 Glenn avenue.

Bob Gibby, the man arrested charged with the stabbing, said that he had merely gone to the aid of his father, who had been hit by a rock. Gibby claimed that he had no knife. The father and W. A. Gibby were released on a copy of charges after the three Gibbys had been arrested on complaint of Quinn. Bob Gibby held pending a preliminary trial.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

At noon Wednesday the Stars and Stripes were hauled down from German territory; the last remnant of the American expeditionary forces entrained for Antwerp, the port of embarkation; and in a few hours the boys will be on the high seas—
homeward bound.

There is genuine joy in the thought; and public sentiment has sustained the president in the withdrawal order, despite the unfortunate fact that it came too late to absolve this government from accrued criticism for a policy that has been inconsistent, contradictory and unwarranted.

For more than two years since this government repudiated the treaty of peace, and withdrew all cooperation in the international problems of reconstruction, these boys have been kept on guard duty at the Coblenz bridgehead, without justification in view of that action.

It finally took the eruption of another European volcano—smouldering and ready to burst into action at any moment since America withdrew from her comrades in battle—to force the return of the boys, coming at an hour when its embarrassing consequences could not be escaped.

It is to be hoped that never again will American soldiers be forced to take up arms in any offensive action, and the sooner we close this final chapter on the war of the happier we all will be.

What a pity it is that the departing boys who fought and bled for the supremacy of democratic government and the peace of the world should not be permitted to look back from the sea over the broad fields of continental Europe and see the full and enduring reward of their sacrifices, covenanted by their victory, and sealed by the writ of armistice!

And yet such is not the case.
They reached France when the horizon was red with the fires of war.

They fought a good fight, and at ancient Sedan, memorable in the history of Napoleonic conflicts, the peace for which they fought was declared.

This day they leave Europe with the horizon again lighting up the fires of conflict—

And all because their own government refused to complete the job.

The responsibility cannot be shaken. It will go down through history as a mistake that can never be explained away.

Even yet there is time to help.
The situation knocks at the door of every farm home in America; and its peril threatens every interest.

The economic interests of this country demand that we help to bring about order in Europe. It does not take soldiers. It does take sympathy, co-operation and the strong arm of America's strategic position.

Germany winces; and yet it's only a mild sample of the war she started that's coming home to her now.

The Albany (Ga.) Herald well says that the farmer who has some product of his farm that will bring in some cash every month in the year is the farmer the south needs.

FARMERS' WEEK.

It is a notable gathering of farm problem experts conferring together in Athens this week, and giving voice to their observations and experiences along specific lines so that all the farmers may be benefited. It is hoped that as much publicity may be given to the constructive thought coming out of this meeting as possible, for this is the beginning of the year's farm activities, and the dangerous curves and the blind alleys should be so definitely marked that no delays may occur, and accidents shall be few.

Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, undoubtedly struck the nail on the head when he declared that raising cotton in the United States must not be abandoned, and that in order that the best results may be obtained in the face of the boll weevil, there are certain things that the farmer must keep in mind.

They are: 1—Use of calcium arsenate to poison the weevil. 2—Preparation of the ground, including deep ploughing. 3—Selection of seed. 4—Consideration of the staple as regards quality and length and the intelligent use of fertilizer.

Dr. Soule spoke of crop diversification and urged that it be continued, but with its continuance he would not have raising of cotton abandoned. He said that during the past year for every three dollars made by Georgia farmers, two came from diversified crops, including stock raising, and the third came from the fleecy staple.

He advised the planting of from six to ten acres of cotton to the plow and no more. He stated that Georgia should produce 1,200,000 bales this year and recommended the method of marketing employed by the Georgia Cotton Growers'
Co-operative association.

All of this is good advice. Cotton will always be the major money crop in the south, but under weevil conditions it is foolhardy for a farmer to attempt to grow it successfully on the old basis of "forty acres to the mule." It must be intensively cultivated, which means, as Dr. Soule suggested, from six to ten acres to the plow.

WILL THE PRESIDENT ACT?

The fact that the conservative thought of this country and of the world deplores the action of France in invading Germany in an effort to force reparation settlements, and questions the wisdom of such a course, under the circumstances, does not mean that any maulin or sentimental sympathy should be wasted on Germany.

It must not be overlooked—and certainly it cannot be forgotten—that Germany today is only getting a little dose of the same bitter medicine it twice forced down the throat of France. It must not be forgotten, too, that after the crushing defeat of the armies of Napoleon
III. in 1870 and 1871 France bore her humiliation nobly and paid the reparations demanded of her with scrupulous fidelity.

This latter assuredly is in decided contrast to the attitude that Germany has shown since the signing of the treaty of Versailles, for no nation has ever, under similar conditions, quibbled and evaded and sidestepped any more than Germany has.

It must not be lost sight of, however, that the Germany of today is a new Germany, seeking to build upon the ashes of Prussianism a free and independent republic of and for and by the people—and that the world war was fought that such a democracy might endure.

Putting aside by side the situations of the two nations that have never loved each other, and for reasons, the point is, not tears of sympathy for Germany, nor censure for France, but—has not France jeopardized her own interests, and the economic interests of her allies, by cutting from Germany the very base of her earning ability, by the same token throwing all of continental Europe into a greater turmoil of political and economic disorder, and all without accomplishing anything but a punitive revenge upon an old enemy?

Patience would no doubt have been golden for France, and now that the step has been taken, for better or worse, the obligation of this country, not with soldiers, but with the strong arm of mutual sympathy and co-operation, is to step in and bring the belligerents together, and see that justice is done to both.

The pity—the burning pity—is that this government did not exercise its opportunity and its duty before. All of this could have been averted; and how important it is, to the economic welfare of America as well as Europe, that it should have been averted.

It is late—but not too late for a helping hand yet; for the sympathy and co-operation that may bring war out of chaos, and restore peace and trade relations—

Will President Harding go to congress with some tangible, definite program to make effective what he, too, declares is now a national duty?

Keeping helpfully busy during 1923 will enable you to forget your resolution to break your resolution.

Fancy Work Limit.
(From The Eureka Herald.)
The other day a Eureka man in a Winter Explains.

Winter's jes' like humans.

Commerce, Miss., January 24.—J.
Bernard Sparks, of Brooklyn, federal return.

Sparks is alleged to have accepted turn is said to have been questioned by Sparks. He was placed in jail at Clarksburg, in default of bond to await action by a federal grand jury.

$5,000 QUOTA WANTED

Atlanta Chapter of Hadassah to Start Campaign.

A campaign to raise the $5,000 quota of the Atlanta Chapter of Hadassah, to aid the welfare institutions in the Holy Land, established by the Hadassah medical unit in Palestine, has been started by members of the chapter, it was announced Wednesday by Mrs. Jacob Buckman, president of the club.

In asking generous-hearted citizens to aid us in this work we feel that we are appealing for a work that should quicken every American heart with pride, she said.

The hospitals, clinics, dispensaries, infant welfare stations and the maternity wards established by the organization have been taxed to their fullest capacity and we feel that the work must not stop, for thousands of helpless refugees are daily urging that every effort be made to expand this work.

BODEKER CONSIDERED

Birmingham Man Suggested as Beavers' Successor.

George H. Bodeker, formerly chief of police of Birmingham, Ala., now head of a private detective agency, is the latest prospective successor for chief of Atlanta's police department.
In the event the ouster movement to displace Police Chief James L. Beavers is successful, according to indications Wednesday in political circles.

Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of the police committee, held an extended conference Wednesday with Mr. Bodeker in his office. Neither Mr. Bodeker nor Chairman Armistead would discuss the matter.

Mr. Bodeker served as chief of the Birmingham department for seven years, retiring from that position in 1914 to become head of the Bodeker National Detective agency.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, January 24.—I am writing this in the drawing room of a train—speeding to Manhattan. An arrogant sun is sinking and across a field moves a home-going hunter with gun and dogs. Blobs of train smoke half obscure a herd of cattle moving sluggishly to a creek. A one-armed fellow with a stop signal waves at the cross roads.

Outsiders, a portable talking machine is grinding out "Toot! Toot! Tootsie!" And a group of military school cadets are singing off key. Then comes a water tank stop. There is a short order restaurant, a sprinkling of scrofulous shacks, and unkempt gardens.

Nyctalgia! That was the train starting and my fingers missed fire. A clumping of feet behind which gleams the ochre ray of a cabin lamp—it appears a depressing place—a bit of crude realism—and yet there may be more happiness there than in the homes of the rich to which we are rushing. I wonder!

The porter buzzes the bell. He tells me he lives in Chicago but was born in Tennessee. He is not very happy because he has sized up his passengers and says he has "a nickel and dime" crowd. I trust he is not indulging in personalities.

A blue black mantle is falling over the rolling country—a jumble of whorls, arabesques and gaps of dim gray and black plush. The trees seem stark and desolate. A sprinkling of chines has switched to "Just a Little Love Song." And the muted lights of another town flash tumbling and swirling in the distance.

The dining car waiter is lurching through the train singing his cheery roundelay: "First call for dinner!
First call for dinner! The young customers are off with a rush and whoop.
You're thorough!"

A dining car of a fast express is a cosmopolitan spot. Across from me sits a man past middle age. His wife is dumpy and the kind I imagine takes a pride in cooking. He strikes me as an honest cloud—perhaps secretly hates his mooncussing spouse but could not live without her. When she asks a question he merely grunts. She is carrying a little note book with the gilt inscription "My Trip"—perhaps her first one.

Next to me is a lantern-jawed man of ecclesiastical bearing. He is a vegeterian. And is quite fussy about having sugar on his tomatoes. He gazed at my wrist watch when I did a "boarding house" reach and somehow I got the idea he snuffed a little con-temptuously. If I wanted to be catty I could do the same thing about the rheumatism ring he is wearing.

Down the aisle is a man of Fifth avenue or the Strand. He is monocled and takes little interest in what is going on about him. He wears a red rose in his coat lapel.

Then there is a traveling salesman—the kind that can travel all day and sleep from a train as secure as they had stepped from the proverbial bandbox. He is busy adding up columns of figures in his little book.
Perhaps his expense account.

Two young girls in short mother coats—their hair bobbed and lips coarsely rouged. One carries a motion picture weekly and is calling various stars by their first names.
They cast sheep-eyes at the drummer now and then but he appears impervious.

The most substantial looking diner is stout with overhanging jaws. He is wearing a roomy suit of clothes, low collar, black tie and has no jewelry adornments. Propped up in front of him is a trade magazine. He tipped his waiter 15 cents.

HEALTH TALKS

SOUP FRUIT AND SOUR MILK.

Foods which are naturally of an acid character, such as lemons or to-matos, do not necessarily have an acid or acidifying influence in the system. I have repeatedly attempted to explain this, but from many queries relating to the matter I know that the popular notion still persists that such items in the diet make things acid in the system. One or two fruits do contain acids and contribute toward acidity in the system, in the blood, in the tissues of the body, although the most fruit acids, including that of lemons (and oranges, limes, grapefruit) and that of tomatoes, are oxidized in the system and really yield alkali, making the blood more alkaline, the tissues more alkaline, the urine less acid. The capacity of the system to convert the fruit acids into alkali is almost unlimited. An individual, for experimental purposes, drank nearly 2-1/2 quarts of orange juice (the juice of two dozen large oranges), which would yield about 1-1/2 ounces of pure citric acid, and yet all this was converted into alkaline base, changing the urine from its normal acid state to alkaline.

When it comes to drinking sour, fermented or plain buttermilk, however, the effect is different. If a large amount of the acid in such milk (lactic acid) is absorbed, although all or most of it is oxidized or burned in the system, as in the case of the fruit acids, still the urine becomes strongly acid, the blood more acid, the tissues more acid, and the effect is to increase the elimination of acid phosphates.
Ordinarily a fresh or whole milk or skim milk diet yields practically a neutral urine. Whole milk or skim milk is usually considered neutral, so far as its influence on acid or alkaline reactions of blood or tissues is concerned. But fermented (buttermilk) soured milk must be listed among the acid-producing foods.

In a general way certain foods yield an acid "ash" and other foods an alkaline or neutral base, in metabolism (assimilation and utilization of food material as fuel in the system).

Foods Which Furnish Acid.
Meats, eggs, cereals, particularly whole grains, peanuts, plums, prunes, cranberries and fermented, sour or buttermilk in excess.

Foods Which Furnish Alkali.
All fruits in the acid list (plums, prunes, cranberries). Tomatoes, potatoes, lettuce, beans, beets, cabbage, turnips, peas, celery, asparagus, corn, etc.
No matter how acid, when eaten in moderation, no person at all who should avoid the foods which furnish acid. I have given these lists merely to reassure readers who may have been misled by the popular misderstandings of "acid foods."

Even sour milk or buttermilk is wholesome for most persons, in daily quantities of a pint or thereabouts.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Dear Sir: Would you advise me to send $35 to the Bellevue Medical institute for a treatment guaranteed to cure?
Answer.—No, I think it would be much better for you to throw the $35 into the furnace. You would at least get some warmth out of it. When anybody purporting to be a healer, physician or specialist does business under any other name than his own, you make no mistake in refraining from dealing with him. And you will not permit me to give one more suggestion along the same line: Any recommendation of a treatment or cure taken seriously, for of course nobody can guarantee to cure anything under heaven. I mean nobody under heaven can guarantee a cure for anything.

Sleeping Sickness.

What is the cause of sleeping sickness? Is there any possibility of victims of sleeping sickness being buried alive?—E. C.

Answer.—A parasite which is injected into the blood of the victim by the bite of the tsetse fly causes sleeping sickness, found in tropical countries only. What has been incorrectly termed "sleeping sickness" in this country in recent years is brain inflammation (encephalitis lethargica), and is probably due to an infection in the usual way of respiratory infections like diphtheria, influenza, etc. The disease is not considered a sleeping sickness because the victims of such diseases being buried alive.

ATTENTION, SQUIGGINS!

Here's Another Man With Confederate Bonds.

J. H. Mitchener, of Washington Court House, Ohio, is the latest addition to those who read The Constitution story about Abner Lee Squig-gin, his confederate bond against the state of Georgia, and the payment he received by Attorney General George
M. Napier, in confederate money.
Mitchener writes he has two Georgia bonds, one for $500 and one for the $1,000, and he would prefer to have them paid, with interest, in confederate money. So, if it can be found, the money will be sent to Mr. Mitchener.

COLLEGE PARK SCHOOL TAX LEVY IS ILLEGAL

Wording of Act Passed by Legislature Attacked by Court.

College Park is all tangled up again over its city school taxes. The supreme court declared Wednesday that the act increasing the tax levy from 50 cents to $1.00 on the $100 is unconstitutional.

This act was passed by the legislature in 1920, amending the College Park charter. A referendum election was held in which about three-fourths of those voting supported the amendment. Following this the increased rate was collected for 1921 and 1922.

Opponents carried their objection to the increase to Fulton supreme court.
Demand an injunction there, they appealed to the supreme court.
The court held that the act making the amendment is unconstitutional because it does not specify that the amendment must be carried by a two-thirds majority.

The situation in regard to taxes already paid for 1921 and 1922, and for 1923 taxes, is now worrying College Parkites. They are hoping they can rectify the technical error by an immediate election, without having to wait for the legislature to take action.

AMERICA DROPS TO FIFTH PLACE IN SHIP BUILDING

New York, January 23.—The United States last year dropped from second place to fifth in the ranks of ship building, according to a report of the Lloyd's Register of Shipping, which in its annual report issued today declared 1922 the poorest ship building year since 1912, with 24,000 tons less production than 1921.

Ship building in every nation, except Germany, decreased in 1922, but the American falling off was most considerable, the report showed.

The line-up of great merchant marines last year was: Great Britain, Germany, France, Holland, United States, Italy, and Japan. Instead of being first, Great Britain, United States, Germany, Holland, Japan, France and Italy.

New American tonnage last year was 143,128 as compared with 1,061,415 in 1921, while the British total was 1,031,051 as compared with 1,518,052, making the American loss $7,000,000 worth of tonnage, the British 507,000 tons worth of all the other powers 480,000 tons.

The volume of world ship building in 1922 was a third of that for 1919.
A quarter of the production was carried out in Germany, the only nation to show an increase over last year and over pre-war years.

MOBILE & OHIO ANNOUNCES NEW LINE EXTENSION

Mobile, Ala., January 24.—Vice President C. B. Hayes, of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, announced today that a third division of the road between Mobile and Birmingham, Ala.,
the division will extend from Cairo, Ill.,
to Birmingham, Ala., via Oklaoma.
Miss. D. E. Rice has been named superintendent of the new division.

Impeachment Charges Are Formally Filed Against Governor Small

Reversing its earlier decision the Georgia supreme court Wednesday removed the bar sinister from all city courts in Georgia, with the exception of Atlanta and Savannah, which were not affected by the first ruling. In the case involving the court of Thomasville the court held that it is entirely constitutional, despite the fact that the act creating this and similar courts does not require a jury of twelve in criminal cases and other differences.

Chief Justice Russell, who has been added to the supreme court since the earlier decision, wrote a special opinion concurring with Judge Hines in his opinion.

HOW TO GET RID OF COLDS AND CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive, Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There are many people suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching cold after cold, for they must realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles. Dr. Blosser, for years a specialist in catarrh, is the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by women and children as well as men. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette, and inhale the vapor into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, carrying medicine where surgery, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. It contains no cubes, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is effective in all forms of colds, catarrh, asthma, nasal headache and ear troubles that may lead to deafness. You will breathe better and feel better after using it.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 40 D. T. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.—(adv.)

Harmless Means of Reducing Fat

Many fat people fear ordinary means for reducing their weight. Here is an extraordinary method. Extraordinary because it is perfectly harmless to dieting or exercise. It is made exactly in accordance with the famous Maruola Prescription. You reduce steadily and safely, without all the facts. Prescribe them from your druggist at one dollar for a case or send price direct to the Maruola Company, 1012 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.—(adv.)

Exodus Story Confirmed

INSCRIPTIONS TELL OF PLAGUES IN COUNTRY
By Excavations in Egypt

BY ARTHUR WEIGALL
(Copyright, 1923, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Luxor, Egypt, January 24.—A large air tomb, a short distance from the newly discovered sepulchre of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the pharaoh who ruled about 1350 B. C., is being used by excavators as a storehouse and work shop. Thither all the unusual antiquities are now rapidly being removed so as to clear the original chamber for opening the sealed burial chamber on the return of Lord Carnarvon early next month.

Among the most interesting objects thus brought into the daylight in the last few days is a beautiful footstool, inlaid with a row of figures of foreign slaves or captives, the idea being that thus the king's feet would tread contemptuously upon them.

In view of my contention, last week that Tut-Ankh-Amen was the pharaoh of the oppression it is interesting to note that some of these captives are semitic and quite possibly the actual Israelites of the Exodus.

In previous dispatches I referred to the bad state of preservation of the tomb. Apparently dampness penetrated the chamber, owing to the low position of the sepulchre in the valley bed, and a consequent percolation of occasional rains. The face of one of the two statues of Pharaoh has split open. The royal robes, removed yesterday from the tomb, are in the most fragile state, what help of objects require most careful handling.

Fortunately the services of Mr. Lucas, the government chemical expert, are still available. A great debt is due Mr. Lucas, who is head of the Egyptological department of the Metropolitan Museum, New York, who is directing neighboring excavations, and who has lent an expert staff to us. Mr. Howard Carter, who with Lord Carnarvon discovered the tomb, also has much skill and ingenuity in such matters. Hence the likelihood that the treasures will perish.

Condition of Mummies.
It is a question, however, whether the mummies have perished. In the sealed chamber and whether the mummies will be found rotted. When I entered the tomb of King Akhnaton some years ago the king's body was in a most deplorable state, decayed flesh and wrappings, due to a fissure in the ceiling by means of which rainwater had penetrated.

I have been much shocked by the present condition of the mummies. I have seen the mummies in the Valley of the Kings seventeen years ago. When they came from the tomb they were in a few days a time in a forlorn condition, absolutely new, untouched by time.

FRED SMITH TO SPEAK
Business Leader Will Discuss After-War Conditions.

Fred B. Smith, of New York, will address the Chamber of Commerce luncheon next Monday.

Mr. Smith, an official of the Johns-Manville company, one of the largest manufacturers of pipe coverings and other asbestos products in the world, comes to Atlanta from a tour covering practically the civilized world, in conference with national leaders in the spheres of government and business he has come in contact with the thinkers of today.

Mr. Smith is a speaker of national renown and grips his audience as few men can. Equipped as he is with first hand information concerning war conditions, his address on "America and World War Prospects" will be of great interest at this time.

In order to secure Mr. Smith for this message forum with such deep significance just now, it was necessary to change the date of the regular forum luncheon to Monday.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS
Mrs. Babb's Body Will Be Brought to Atlanta.

The body of Mrs. W. W. Babb, former Atlanta woman who died Wednesday morning at her home in Winston-Salem, N. C., as a result of burns received Tuesday, will arrive in Atlanta at 5:40 o'clock this morning, and will be removed to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scott, 366 Forrest avenue. Interment in West View.

Mrs. Babb lived several years before moving to Winston-Salem in 1921. She was 28 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who left Atlanta Tuesday night for North Carolina, will accompany the body.

Besides her husband, W. W. Babb, and parents, she is survived by a 10-month-old daughter, Charlotte Anne Babb; two sisters, Mrs. P. M. Plant and Miss Helen Scott, of Atlanta; one brother, David G. Scott, of Atlanta, and one aunt, Miss Annie McNaughton, of Buffalo, N. Y.

JURY GETS DRUG CASE
Woman Denies Knowing She Possessed Opium.

In event a verdict is reached in the case of Mattie Belle Morris, on trial in United States district court charged with violating the narcotic law, it will be held under seal and rendered at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, it was announced after the case went to the jury late Wednesday night.

The prosecution sought to establish that Mattie Belle Morris, on January 20, 1922, had in her possession a quantity of opium, in violation of the narcotic law.

Defendant claimed that she had come into possession of the package in her purse through another person, without knowing it was "dope."

COLD HELPED PEACHES
"Best Thing That Could Have Happened," Says Carlisle.

"The cold snap is the best thing that could have happened for the 1923 fruit crop," said G. Carlisle, manager of the Georgia fruit exchange, Wednesday. He has just returned from an extended tour of the middle west, looking toward marketing Georgia's next year peach crop.

"The little spell of cold was just the thing needed to hold back the rising sap and keep the buds from sprouting."

"If the warm weather had lasted a little longer and then the customary February freeze had come along, peach growers would have been heavy losers."

HONOR BURNS TONIGHT
Pleasant Stovall Will Make Principal Address.

Pleasant A. Stovall, Georgia editor and former minister to Switzerland, will arrive in Atlanta this morning to attend the celebration of the 104th anniversary of Robert Burns, which will be held by the Burns club this evening at 7 o'clock at the Burns cottage.

Mr. Stovall will speak at the dinner on the subject "Our Country." Response to the toast, to the "Immortal Memory of Robert Burns" will be made by the Rev. Charles G. Campbell.

Lovable Traits Found in Gorilla Asserts Akeley

They're Beautiful, Declares Traveler Who Lectures Tonight.

BY MRS. M'CORD ROBERTS.
Gorillas are beautiful and lovable. That's what Carl Akeley says and he's been returning with them for he just attributed it to an inherent love for nature a la carte. He's a rugged, powerful man who says work is the fountain of youth and that he can do twice as much to-day as he could 20 years ago. He admits leaning to nature unadorned by cosmetics and he produces thrilling moving pictures without paying the actors any salary or bribing them through publicity.

These thrilling moving pictures of wild animals will be shown in connection with his lecture on Africa as he knows it from 20 years of exploring its jungles, mountains and rivers. Dr. Thornehill Jacobs will introduce Mr. Akeley.

Tickets will be on sale all day at the Cable Piano company at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium, at 1:15 o'clock tonight. Orchestra and box seats will be $1 each. Balcony will be 50c each.

How Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic brought wonderful results to an aged mother is told in a letter recently written by her son, C. King, of 1829 Jersey Street, Quincy, Illinois. Mr. King says: "As regards the Paw Paw Tonic, I would like to state that Mother is the one I procured it for. She is 83 years old, had pneumonia, and after her recovery took this tonic, which built her up."

"She is now able to go about the house and do mending and light work. Am sure your tonic brought wonderful results."

"I took the Marrowbone Tablets and they have done much good for me. We have used Munyon's Remedies for years and consider them excellent medicines, as they always bring good results."

Another letter of praise for Paw Paw Tonic comes from J. W. Heath, of Prosper, Texas. He writes: "During the past year I have had occasion to use several bottles of your Paw Paw Tonic, and with very gratifying results. Found it to be an excellent tonic for a general run-down condition of the system and producing restful sleep."

"I do believe that it has no equal on the market as a cure for the ills for which it is recommended. Can cheerfully say that it is all you claim for it as a tonic of real merit, and will convince the most skeptical if given a fair trial. Am always glad to speak a good word for it whenever an opportunity is afforded."

Doesn't this convince YOU? Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic improves the appetite. It helps digest what you eat. It rests the nerves. It remedies stomach troubles. It produces restful sleep.

It is recommended highly by thousands for Indigestion, Despondency, Bileousness, Heartburn, Insomnia and Nervousness, Weak Blood, Stomach Gases, Heavy Headaches, Distress After Eating, Bloating Feeling, Sour Stomach, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Troubles.

Try a bottle of Paw Paw Tonic now. Do not delay any longer. It costs only $1 a bottle at any first-class drug store. You can get it also from the Paw Paw Man, who has a Paw Paw Tonic, and with very gratifying results. Found it to be an excellent tonic for a general run-down condition of the system and producing restful sleep.

Exodus Story Confirmed

INSCRIPTIONS TELL OF PLAGUES IN COUNTRY
By Excavations in Egypt

(Copyright, 1923, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Luxor, Egypt, January 24.—A large air tomb, a short distance from the newly discovered sepulchre of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the pharaoh who ruled about 1350 B. C., is being used by excavators as a storehouse and work shop. Thither all the unusual antiquities are now rapidly being removed so as to clear the original chamber for opening the sealed burial chamber on the return of Lord Carnarvon early next month.

Among the most interesting objects thus brought into the daylight in the last few days is a beautiful footstool, inlaid with a row of figures of foreign slaves or captives, the idea being that thus the king's feet would tread contemptuously upon them.

In view of my contention, last week that Tut-Ankh-Amen was the pharaoh of the oppression it is interesting to note that some of these captives are semitic and quite possibly the actual Israelites of the Exodus.

In previous dispatches I referred to the bad state of preservation of the tomb. Apparently dampness penetrated the chamber, owing to the low position of the sepulchre in the valley bed, and a consequent percolation of occasional rains. The face of one of the two statues of Pharaoh has split open. The royal robes, removed yesterday from the tomb, are in the most fragile state, what help of objects require most careful handling.

Fortunately the services of Mr. Lucas, the government chemical expert, are still available. A great debt is due Mr. Lucas, who is head of the Egyptological department of the Metropolitan Museum, New York, who is directing neighboring excavations, and who has lent an expert staff to us. Mr. Howard Carter, who with Lord Carnarvon discovered the tomb, also has much skill and ingenuity in such matters. Hence the likelihood that the treasures will perish.

Condition of Mummies.
It is a question, however, whether the mummies have perished. In the sealed chamber and whether the mummies will be found rotted. When I entered the tomb of King Akhnaton some years ago the king's body was in a most deplorable state, decayed flesh and wrappings, due to a fissure in the ceiling by means of which rainwater had penetrated.

I have been much shocked by the present condition of the mummies. I have seen the mummies in the Valley of the Kings seventeen years ago. When they came from the tomb they were in a few days a time in a forlorn condition, absolutely new, untouched by time.

FRED SMITH TO SPEAK
Business Leader Will Discuss After-War Conditions.

Fred B. Smith, of New York, will address the Chamber of Commerce luncheon next Monday.

Mr. Smith, an official of the Johns-Manville company, one of the largest manufacturers of pipe coverings and other asbestos products in the world, comes to Atlanta from a tour covering practically the civilized world, in conference with national leaders in the spheres of government and business he has come in contact with the thinkers of today.

Mr. Smith is a speaker of national renown and grips his audience as few men can. Equipped as he is with first hand information concerning war conditions, his address on "America and World War Prospects" will be of great interest at this time.

In order to secure Mr. Smith for this message forum with such deep significance just now, it was necessary to change the date of the regular forum luncheon to Monday.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS
Mrs. Babb's Body Will Be Brought to Atlanta.

The body of Mrs. W. W. Babb, former Atlanta woman who died Wednesday morning at her home in Winston-Salem, N. C., as a result of burns received Tuesday, will arrive in Atlanta at 5:40 o'clock this morning, and will be removed to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scott, 366 Forrest avenue. Interment in West View.

Mrs. Babb lived several years before moving to Winston-Salem in 1921. She was 28 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who left Atlanta Tuesday night for North Carolina, will accompany the body.

Besides her husband, W. W. Babb, and parents, she is survived by a 10-month-old daughter, Charlotte Anne Babb; two sisters, Mrs. P. M. Plant and Miss Helen Scott, of Atlanta; one brother, David G. Scott, of Atlanta, and one aunt, Miss Annie McNaughton, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Woman Denies Knowing She Possessed Opium.

In event a verdict is reached in the case of Mattie Belle Morris, on trial in United States district court charged with violating the narcotic law, it will be held under seal and rendered at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, it was announced after the case went to the jury late Wednesday night.

The prosecution sought to establish that Mattie Belle Morris, on January 20, 1922, had in her possession a quantity of opium, in violation of the narcotic law.

Defendant claimed that she had come into possession of the package in her purse through another person, without knowing it was "dope."

COLD HELPED PEACHES
"Best Thing That Could Have Happened," Says Carlisle.

"The cold snap is the best thing that could have happened for the 1923 fruit crop," said G. Carlisle, manager of the Georgia fruit exchange, Wednesday. He has just returned from an extended tour of the middle west, looking toward marketing Georgia's next year peach crop.

"The little spell of cold was just the thing needed to hold back the rising sap and keep the buds from sprouting."

"If the warm weather had lasted a little longer and then the customary February freeze had come along, peach growers would have been heavy losers."

HONOR BURNS TONIGHT
Pleasant Stovall Will Make Principal Address.

Pleasant A. Stovall, Georgia editor and former minister to Switzerland, will arrive in Atlanta this morning to attend the celebration of the 104th anniversary of Robert Burns, which will be held by the Burns club this evening at 7 o'clock at the Burns cottage.

Mr. Stovall will speak at the dinner on the subject "Our Country." Response to the toast, to the "Immortal Memory of Robert Burns" will be made by the Rev. Charles G. Campbell.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

Fire Mountain

BY NORMAN SPRINGER

Next Week, "Too Many Crooks"
By E. J. Rath

"Well, not go ashore tonight," stated Captain Dabney at supper. "We would lose ourselves wandering about in this fog. If the stuff is still there, it will keep until tomorrow. In the morning we'll have a try, whether the fog has lifted or not."

"We'll find the junk unless Wild Bob and Ichi have beaten us to it," said Little Billy. "Hope they are not snugged close by behind this blooming curtain."

"No danger of that," answered Ruth. "If the Dawn had been anywhere near us, I would have raised her topside above the fog."

"Make it an anchor watch," said the captain. "Guess you'll welcome a couple of extra hours in your bunks. But if the fog lifts during the night, rouse the ship at once and we'll set off for the beach. Got your directions ready, Billy?"

"Yes, in my pocket," said the hunchback. "But I venture that we all know them by heart."

In the lottery that followed Martin drew the watch from two to four in the morning. Little Billy's paper called for from twelve to two. Ruth and the hunchback divided the first four hours.

Before he turned in Martin went forward to discover which of the forecastle hands would share his vigil.

He gathered that MacLean, a superstitious Scot, was to stand the middle watch.

"You'll be on watch with me," he said. "I'll have the two to four. Little Billy has the earlier half of the watch."

"Little Billy!" cried MacLean. "Did ye say Little Billy, lad?"

Suddenly he raised an arm and shook a clenched fist at the mountain.

"Och, ye black de'il's kirk!" he screamed. "Ye blood-sucker! The MacLean's curse on ye!"

Wisp of fog eddied about his gray head and beard, his features wild and passion-working. And he cursed the Fire Mountain! It was surreal, uncanny, a scene from another age.

"Great heavens! What is the matter?" Martin cried, startled.

MacLean mumbled to himself. "Little Billy—och, 'ie Little Billy, dear Billy! 'ie feydon, lad!"

And he turned abruptly, strode forward, and was lost in the fog.

Martin inquired to tell Little Billy about MacLean's strange behavior. He found the hunchback restlessly pacing the tiny floor space of their common room.

"Hello, Martin," he said. "I was waiting up for you. Here—keep these for me, will you?"

He extended a bunch of keys. "I'm feeling extra dry tonight, and I don't want to be tempted by knowing I have the key to the medicine-chest in my pocket. Whenever I pass that confounded box, I think of the two quarts of booze inside, and my tongue swells. Just keep the keys till tomorrow, will you?"

For the past few days, the hunchback had been engaged in a bout with his ancient enemy, the desire for drink. Martin keenly felt the other's suffering.

"Cheer up, Billy!" he said. "A better day coming."

"Oh, sure! Don't worry about me," responded Little Billy. "Good night!"

Climbing into his bunk, the little man composed himself to a pretense of reading.

Martin decided he would not trouble Little Billy with a recital of MacLean's outburst. The poor fellow's mind was feverish, enough without being bothered with the Scot's wild raving.

Martin, however, was oppressed by MacLean's hints of a bout with the wild and gloomy face of the volcano and the depressing fog. Martin was half ashamed of his dread of something he could not name; but he turned in stinging, removing only his shoes and loosening his belt, before crawling into his bunk and drawing the blankets over him.

A strange hand grasping his shoulder brought Martin out of deep sleep to instant consciousness. Opening eyes first rested on the tin clock hanging on the wall opposite. It was one o'clock.

The hand that shook him belonged to MacLean. The old man was bending over him with the white face of one who has seen a ghost.

"He's gone!" he softly exclaimed, before Martin could frame a question. Startled, Martin sat up and swung his legs outboard.

"What—Little Billy?"

"Aye—Billy," responded Sails. "Och, 'tis a bad night outdoors, lad a thick, dark night. And Billy's gone. Didn't I see him in the dark, wearing the black shroud, these months ago? He was feyed! Yon mount is the de'il's home, and others."

"What are you talking about?" interrupted Martin impatiently. "What nonsense! Isn't he on watch?"

"On watch? Aye, who knew where he watches now? He's gone. I tell ye!" hissed the old man fiercely. "He has disappeared from deck." "Och, I can say no way! Billy went aft, and I leaned on the rail, and listened, listened, for I couldn't see. And I heard it! Aye, I kened 'twas it."

for 'twas no the sound o' the waves, nor the calling o' the birds, nor the splash o' anything that lives in the sea. I kened it was it. Hadna I seen the shroud? Sounded like an oar stroke. 'Twas the Prince o' Evil sounding his way, a-comeing wif his shroud. Och! I run aft to tell Billy, and I tell ye, lad, Little Billy was gone."

MacLean leaned forward, his face working with horror.

"He's gone!" reiterated Sails. "I looked all about the decks, and sang out as loud as I could wifoot rousing all hands—and no hide or hair o' Billy could I find. Och, he's gone, I tell ye. MacLeans ha' the sight, lad, and I am the seventh son."

"All right, all right! Don't chatter so loud, ye'll awaken everybody," interrupted Martin. He pulled on his shoes. "I'll go on deck with you, and of course Little Billy will give us the laugh. Was there anything unusual about his manner when you saw him?"

No lad. I ken your thought," replied the other. "He'd no had a drop."

They went forward and stepped out on deck. Martin softly closing the door behind him.

Abruptly, he found himself isolated in a sea of murk.

"Little Billy! Billy!" he called. His call was swallowed up, smothered by the night. He strained his ears. But the only answer was the eery c of a night-flying gull.

Martin was more than disturbed by the silence.

He called again, along the decks. "Rimoo! Oomnak! For'd there—speak up!"

Not a word, not a footfall came out of the gloom.

"Good Lord, they must all be asleep!" exclaimed Martin testily.

He sent MacLean after a lantern. Then his groping hand encountered on top of the captain, Little Billy's rubber tobacco-pouch. Why was Little Billy's pouch abandoned there on the captain's head, this pocket companion of an inveterate smoker?

Something had happened to Little Billy. It was not like Little Billy, this to forsake his beloved bag, his constant ally in his fight against the drink nudge.

Martin leaned over the captain, peering into that baffling gloom. He stiffened tensely. He seemed to hear whispering; it came out of that blinding pit before him, the very ghost of a man's voice. Then his ears caught another sound; it was peculiar, like the patter of his feet.

"MacLean! Where are you?" he called sharply. "Hurry with that lantern!"

Instead of MacLean's voice in reply, he heard a heavy breathing, the sound of a man taking several long, sobbing breaths.

He started forward, and then stopped dead. Out of the black void before him came MacLean's voice—strangled words in a horrible, ascending pitch:

"Marty! Marty! My God! Ah-h-h!"

There was the thud of a heavy falling body striking the deck.

For a second Martin was anchored by horror. Then he leaped forward, finding voice as he did to a great, arousing, wordless yell.

And even as he ran blindly ahead those few paces, he heard a heavy voice give a shouted supplement to his call.

The darkness was suddenly alive with rushing feet. A body hurled itself against him, an arm struck a sweeping blow, and he felt a knife rip through his flannel shirt and graze his shoulder near his neck.

His foot tripped on a ring-bolt and his head struck with stunning force against a bulwark stanchion.

The collision scattered his wits, and Martin lay in the scuppers, blinking at the dancing lights before his eyes. In his ears was a great humming. Then, after a moment, the humming broke into parts and became a babel of shouts.

He heard a hard chatter—voices crying out in a foreign tongue. He heard a great booming voice that stirred memory. He heard a pistol-shot.

MR. ALWAYS LATE—

GOOD GOLLY! LATE AGAIN.

FORTY MINUTES LATE.

WHY DONT YOU GET HERE AT EIGHT?

I WAS AT THE ENTRANCE HERE AT FIVE AFTER EIGHT!

AND YOU LOAFED THERE THIRTY FIVE MINUTES?

NO.—NOT EXACTLY LOAFING—I WAS THINKING UP AN EXCUSE FOR BEING FIVE MINUTES LATE.

He heard Ruth's voice, raised in a sharp, terror-stricken cry: "Martin—Billy—Martin! Oh, help!"

The scream galvanized Martin to action. She was calling him! He struggled to arise, got upon his knees, reached upward and grasped the pin, he drew himself erect and quite without reasoning, drew it out, and, grasping it clublike, rushed aft toward the lighted door of the cabin.

In the cabin one whirling glance that took in the scattered company—the bedraggled Japanese, Captain Dabney lying face down across the threshold of his room, his white hair bloodied, Wild Bob Carew lifting a startled face.

And Carew was holding a squirming, fighting Ruth in his arms!

Martin hardly checked the stride of his entrance. He flung himself toward the man who held his woman, and his club cracked upon a skull.

A man hurtled against him and drove him against the wall. He saw Carew fall, and Ruth spill free of the encircling arms.

Then a hand took him by the throat, long, supple, muscular fingers stopping his wind. He saw a face upraised in his—an expressionless yellow face, with glittering, slanting eyes. He drew up his club for the blow. The slender fingers were probing upward behind his jawbone, and he was choking.

Then, it seemed to Martin, a stream of liquid fire flooded his veins, searing his entire body. The belaying-pin dropped from his nerveless hand, his arms drooped, his knees sagged.

The terrible fingers squeezed tighter. He could feel his eyeballs starting, his tongue swelling. The flame consumed his vitals. It was hellish pain—quite the sharpest agony Martin had ever felt.

He was upon his back on the floor. The fingers were gone, but the awful pain continued. His wits were swimming. A pain of soft arms was cushioned against a loved and fragrant breast; a dear voice spoke his name anxiously:

"Martin, Martin! What have they done? Oh, Martin, speak to me!" He tried to speak, but could not.

Then the loved presence was gone and he was alone. A face bent over him—a yellow face. It was a well-remembered face, the face of little Dr. Ichi.

It seemed to Martin he was wandering in a vast and thirsty desert. To the very core of his being he was dry. Drink! Drink! With his whole life he just drank.

Something cold, slimy, horrible, ran over his face, and a loathful thrill shocked him into reality.

He tried to move and sat up. He heard a frenzied squeaking, and a light scampering on wood, and he knew that a rat had run over his body.

All the sensations of consciousness assailed him abruptly. He knew where he was instantly—the jumble of casks and kegs and boxes told him he was in the ship's lazaret.

Next, he became aware that something was the matter with his arms. They ached cruelly. After a moment's experimenting and reflection the truth came to him with shocking force—his arms were drawn behind him, and his wrists were handcuffed together. The shock of that discovery dissipated the fog over his mind. The sum of his memories was clear, and for the moment it crushed and terrified him. For it was evident that the brig was in Carew's hands. They had been surprised in the fog, a piracy had occurred, murder had been done, and Wild Bob and his yellow followers had taken the ship.

MacLean was dead! And Little Billy was dead! Captain Dabney was dead! The crew—God knew, perhaps—they were slaughtered too!

And Ruth—Ruth was alive, in Carew's hands, of the mercy of the brute she so feared. Ruth was alive—to suffer what fate?

And he—he who loved her—was chained and helpless.

Panic, rage, despair, shook Martin. In excess of misery, he groaned aloud, a smothered sob of anguish.

"Martin, lad! 'Ave you come around? You're sittin' up. Ow, swiggle me, lad, pipe up!"

The words came from the huddled figure behind a stanchion, in a husky, beseeching rumble.

Words tore barbed through Martin's sore throat, and were hardly managed by his dry, swollen tongue.

"All right—bos—dry—come."

He got upon his knees and hunched himself along upon his knees to the stanchion.

"Drink—dry—water," he gabbled painfully.

"Marty—Marty, lad, I'm glad you're 'ere," came the heartfelt whisper from the boatwain. "I feared 'e'd choked the life out o' ye. Dry, ye say? So am I, lad. Cussed so much I can't spit—an' my back's bloomin' well busted from bendin' over 'uggin' this stanchion!"

Scruggs-Oldknow Wedding Is Beautiful Home Ceremony

A marriage of cordial interest to many friends throughout Georgia was that of Miss Marian Louise Scruggs to Oscar Stuart Oldknow, which was solemnized at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Scruggs, on McLendon avenue.

Dean Thomas H. Johnston, of St. Philip's cathedral, performed the impressive ceremony in the presence of the families and a few close friends.

House Decorations.
Quantities of Columbia roses and white carnations, artistically arranged in vases and bowls, decorated the rooms where the guests assembled.

The bride party stood in the drawing room before an improvised altar of handsome palms, which formed an effective background for tall white candles placed in cathedral candelabra.

As Harpocok rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin for the entrance of the bride party, and during the ceremony she played favorite airs of the bride.

Mrs. Norris Mundy, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a modishly fashioned gown of dark blue crepe with a garniture of ribbon. Her hat was of French blue taffeta, having silver ribbon used as trimming. She carried a beautiful bouquet of Columbia roses.

Ned Detonet, of Dallas, Texas, acted as Mr. Oldknow's best man.

Beautiful Bride.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, William L. Scruggs, of Salisbury, N. C., was radiantly beautiful in her bridal costume of beige satin, crepe fashioned with touches of green as trimming. She wore a hat of green straw, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley, showered with the lilies.

Mrs. Scruggs wore a gown of black crepe and a corsage of Parma violets.

Mrs. William Oldknow, mother of the groom, was gowned in black crepe, and wore a henna hat with henna ostrich.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, and assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Mrs. William Oldknow, Mrs. W. L. Scruggs, Mrs. E. C. Scruggs and Mrs. A. M. Scruggs.

The table in the dining room was adorned by a cover of lace and in the center was a Wedgewood vase, an heirloom in the family, filled with Columbia roses and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Oldknow left later in the day for a wedding trip to New York and upon their return will reside at the Georgian Terrace until the completion of their apartment on Peachtree and Sixth streets.

The bride's going-away costume was a three-piece model in navy blue pique with the blouse of gray chiffon embroidered in cut steel beads, and her hat was of gray straw.

The out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Scruggs, of Salisbury, N. C., and Ned Detonet, of Dallas, Texas.

Prominent Families.

Mrs. Oldknow is the eldest of two daughters, her sister being Mrs. Norris Mundy, formerly Miss Margaret Scruggs. She is the granddaughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. William L. Scruggs, Colonel Scruggs holding at one time the distinguished office of United States minister to Venezuela, South America, and China. She is also the niece of Miss Maude Scruggs and Mrs. Charles Loftus Grant Anderson, both of Washington, D. C., and the late Mrs. Minnie Scruggs Robinson, of Atlanta.

The bride's mother was formerly Miss Lyla Watson, of Cobb county, daughter of the late Judge John P. Watson. The bride has often attended festivities at the University of Georgia and other southern colleges. She is a graduate of Girl's High school.

Mrs. Oldknow is one of the most beautiful and popular members of the younger society set. She is of the exquisite brunette type, with dark brown eyes. By her sweet and winning personality she has made an enviable place for herself in Atlanta's life.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Oldknow, who are originally from Oldham, Eng. He is a graduate of Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and other active society organizations. He is connected with his father's business, the Southern States Film company.

Carl Akeley Gives Rules For Jungle Hunt

The old adage about experience being an expensive teacher applies in the case of Carl Akeley, noted hunter of Africa's big game, who will lecture at the Atlanta Woman's club Thursday evening, for a number of hair-breadth escapes and all sorts of dangers have featured his explorations in African jungles. Ten years in the heart of Africa have taught him, he says, "You never can tell" when it comes to the next move on the part of a wild animal.

Among the rules Mr. Akeley has formulated for tourists in the jungle a few are:

Don't fool with the elephant unless you mean business. He is the shrewdest, craftiest, and most vindictive animal of the jungles.

Don't be afraid of the gorilla—he's not looking for trouble.

Don't get chummy with the leopard—unless you have a body-guard. He is bloodthirsty, fearless, will pick a quarrel with men on slightest provocation, and will fight until the last breath.

Don't waste your time on the ostrich—he's the craftiest bird of all, in spite of the commonly accepted slanders about burying his head in time of danger. As a matter of fact he buries everything except his snaky head and will worry you along for days—just out of range.

Don't let the "rhino" bother you. He makes the most noise, kicks up the most dust, but is really the clown of the jungle. If he comes your way, simply step aside and let him pass. In nine cases out of ten he'll keep on going.

Don't forget the African buffalo should be given a wide berth. He's an actor easily infuriated and isn't at all satisfied with an ordinary conventional killing. Lots of folks have been fooled by the African buffalo and didn't live to tell the story. If you want a real fight, take the lion. He's the square shooter of the jungle.

Despite his thunderous roar he's a pacifist at heart, but will put up a battle royal when patience ceases to be a virtue.

Mr. Akeley will talk about these animals and a number of other African peculiarities at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The lecture will be illustrated with pictures taken in the heart of the jungle, some of them movie pictures, others "stills."

Season tickets to the Atlanta Woman's club lecture course cover the Akeley lecture, which will be in place of the lecture to have been given next date by another lecturer. Individual tickets will be $1.00 for orchestra and box seats, 50 cents for balcony seats, and they will be on sale the day of the lecture at the Cable Piano company, and at 7:30 p. m. at the box office of the club auditorium.

D. A. R. Makes Offer Of Scholarships.

At an all-day meeting which will be held in the church Friday, January 26, Mrs. Napier, of Rome, returned missionary from China, and Miss Laura Lee Patrick, state corresponding secretary for the W. M. S., and others will give a program.

Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

TINKLING CYMBALS AND SOUNDING BRASS.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY. I, an erstwhile debutante, destined to marry Jonathan Grey, fast, more than 40 and very rich. My mother, who is ambitious. Larry, a man who dances well. My stranger, whose name I do not know, whom I love, but have refused to wed.

Saturday, December 9. "You!" There was genuine amazement in Larry's voice. He was driving with one hand. The car picked up speed and shot out along the road.

"Oh, Larry—Larry—I'm so glad it's you! I can't go back!" I whispered as I huddled down under the sleeve of his heavy coat.

"Go back? What's up?" he asked. "I've run away—ran out of the house and left him—back there!" My teeth chattered and gave the words a ridiculous tremor.

"You're cold—damn little fool, running out of the house without the sign of a wrap!" Larry pulled a big robe out of the back of the car and started wrapping it around me.

"Run away from whom?" he demanded when he had finished. "Everybody!"

"Who is everybody?" he persisted. "Jonathan Grey."

"And what's the trouble with Jonathan?" Larry asked. "He's filthy with coin—so they say."

"But I don't love him," I said foolishly. "Good heavens, kid, Larry laughed. 'Good heavens, kid, who's asking you to love him?'"

"But I'm going to marry him! I've promised! Mother wants me to and—oh, I can't! Larry, Larry—can't. I'll kill myself first—can't you do something? You do love me, don't you?" I went on wildly.

"Of course I do—of course I do," he patted my shoulder. "But you mustn't go to pieces like this. You'll have to get in somewhere for the night—can't you go back home?"

"I don't want to go home. I won't go home! I hate him!" I said furiously. "Larry, don't you love me? Don't you love me as you did the other night when you kissed my hands?"

"Yes—of course I do—little silly!" And his words, meaningless as they proved to be, were the straw my mad heart clutched at.

"Then I'm going to stay with you," I said firmly. "I'm never going back. We'll go away together—and—oh, I can't! Larry, Larry—can't. Your wife doesn't care anything, does she?"

I had met Larry's wife a number of times and remembered her as a red-haired woman who had managed to stay oddly youthful in spite of a rather lengthy and strenuous stage career.

"But we can't do that—not to-night," he added hastily, and then, patting my shoulder, continued, "Poor little kiddie—poor little kiddie—"

He kissed me. I was desperate, ready to grasp at anything. "Larry, you've got to take me," I said. "I can't go back now. Jonathan's probably around the house—hold. Mother will be furious. They wouldn't believe any explanation I could give them of this time. I've been out in the night—anyway, there just isn't anything that I can say except that I was crazy, crazy at the thought of Jonathan Grey for the rest of my life. You've got to take me, Larry. I've drawn my knees up under my chin, locked my arms around them and solemnly preached to Larry."

"Anyhow, you see, you love me; you've told me that. And I—I care for you." (I couldn't say 'love' for the word brought into my mental vision the face of another man.) "And I think it would be all right, for us, don't you?" Love makes anything all right, doesn't it, Larry?

"Yes—but we can't, little girl, not to-night, anyway," Larry warned. "Sure you couldn't manage to get into your home without being caught?" he added.

"Sure!" I ventured. "Then tell me what I'll do," he went on. "I'll give you the key to my apartment and take you to the corner of Fifty-seventh street. From there you can run the half block. I'll watch to see that you get in safely. The doorman won't notice you and if the elevator boy says anything, tell him you're a friend of my wife's. She went on tour yesterday, so there's no one there."

I turned to look at him in the dim light. "Larry—won't you?" "No!" he interrupted angrily. "I won't go! The whole town would know it by tomorrow if I did—you will little goose! Now get out and run for your life!"

He opened the door of the car, took hold of my arm and almost pushed me out. Once more on my feet I started walking quickly in the direction of his apartment. As I moved I heard something strike the sidewalk sharply. A few minutes later I realized that I had lost my jeweled comb.

"A Difficult Encounter." Monday, December 11. I fitted the key into the lock of Larry's apartment. The rays of a dim light shone over the cranium. I wondered at the carelessness of leaving a light burning when there was no one home. The key turned. The door opened noiselessly. I slipped inside and then stood with my back to the closed door, both hands on the knob.

Four candles, evidently black for mourning, were burning in the large living room. The candelabra was on a small table near a chaise longue. The lounge seemed to be filled with cushions. I wondered, as I stared into the soft light, if the burnished thing reflecting a glow, near the head, could be silk embroidery. And then suddenly, in the way one does sense those things they see nor feel nor hear, I sensed a human presence.

There was a movement. Not the slightest sound of breathing. But I knew I was not alone!

I turned the knob of the door, started to open it softly, and was about to back out. The voice came from the chaise longue. It was deep, quiet.

"I thought you told me who you are and how you happen to have a key to my apartment." The voice continued, though there was yet no movement in the room.

"However, I could hazard a guess," she had turned. I felt the motion rather than saw it. In an instant I was standing in a glare of light and as soon as my eyes accustomed themselves to it, I saw, stretched on the lounge before me—Larry's wife!

"I thought you were gone!" I was still shivering with cold, but confusion and embarrassment flooded my face with color.

"I surmised as much," the dulcet voice went on. "And when is your partner in crime to arrive?"

"My partner—in crime?" I repeated. "I was entirely at a loss."

"Meaning my husband—of course," she smiled. Her voice was even more musical. "But do sit down. And can't I get you some coffee? Something hot, perhaps? How discourteous I've been! I hadn't meant to talk you to death before offering you the hospitality due a friend of my husband's—thoughtless of me! But it's so much easier to talk than to think!"

I stood as if petrified, while she rambled on. Finally she ceased talking and simply looked at me. There was nothing in the look, no anger, no surprise, nothing. She might not even have seen me at all, the expression on her face indicated.

"I'm cold," it was my own voice I heard, but it was strained and unnatural. Oddly toneless, as if the soul of me had suddenly gone out, left standing there only the empty shell.

"Of course you're cold," Mrs. Larry, with rustling and shimmering of much silk, was on her feet and moving swiftly out of the room.

Presently she returned with a cup of steaming liquid.

"It takes such a minute—I should have fixed it for you before," she said, and taking my hand, drew me to a settee.

"Anyhow, you see, you love me; you've told me that. And I—I care for you." (I couldn't say 'love' for the word brought into my mental vision the face of another man.) "And I think it would be all right, for us, don't you?" Love makes anything all right, doesn't it, Larry?

"Yes—but we can't, little girl, not to-night, anyway," Larry warned. "Sure you couldn't manage to get into your home without being caught?" he added.

CHAPTER LXIV. A New Admirer. Cynthia awoke the next morning with a delightful sense that something pleasant had happened. She looked forward to the day's happenings as she had looked forward to them in the old days when she was alone with Roger.

She breakfasted on deck, and then played shuffle board with Lucile and the two youths with whom she had been dancing the evening before. Margaret came on deck with Bruce, tucked him up in his steamer chair, and then began to walk around the deck.

Brian Gysbert joined Cynthia presently, and then, after he had presented to Margaret, joined her in her walk. Later he seated himself beside Bruce, and from where she was Cynthia could hear them feeling of being left out of things.

But Gysbert rejoined her before luncheon, and they spent part of the afternoon standing in the bow of the ship, watching the spray that flew out in white clouds where the ship cut through it.

"Have you ever stood like this at night and watched the water when it gleamed with phosphorus?" Gysbert asked. "It's very beautiful. The sea is always beautiful, though, for that matter."

"Yes, I suppose it is," Cynthia replied. "I wish I knew it better."

Whether or not she became better acquainted with the sea during that day and the next one, she certainly came to know Brian Gysbert better. They were together much of the time, and she thoroughly enjoyed the lazy, golden hours during which he found so many interesting things to say to her.

She was almost sorry when it came time to pack her belongings and get ready to go ashore. The boat was to go on to Havana, and the passengers for Nassau would be transferred to a smaller boat that would leave for there.

everywhere, I suppose."

"And I've always been at home," Cynthia murmured. The pretty, comfortable little house in New York seemed very far away at that moment.

She was rather sorry when at last they landed. The long, shed-like building where the customs officers awaited them was shadowy in the corners, brightly lit along the tables where incoming baggage was examined.

"You people need not wait; I'll take care of things for you, if you'll wait a few moments longer," she told the woman. "I'd rather pack them myself, really."

The sea was rather rough when the smaller boat came alongside, and the gangplank down which they had to walk was very steep. Cynthia was glad to have Gysbert just behind her, where he could grasp one of her arms with a steady hand when she wavered.

After the passengers had been transferred there was still the baggage to change from one to the other, and when at last the smaller boat drew away from the larger one it was quite dark. Cynthia stood at the rail, watching the big liner with its rows of lights as it floated away across the water; loneliness swept over her in a great tide, and she wished for a moment that she could be back on the other boat, going to Cuba.

Brian Gysbert joined her. "Lonely?" he asked, startling her by the accuracy with which he read her mood.

"Yes—I can't help it," she replied. "I was very happy on that ship, and I hate to see it sail out of my life."

"There'll be other ships on which you'll be happy," he assured her, so significantly that she glanced up at him in amazement. "And there's no telling what is in store for you in Nassau, remember."

"I hope it's something nice," she replied, almost childishly.

"You still feel that you'd rather be sailing on to another port, don't you? Well, I can understand that. All my life that has been my ruling desire—to sail on to something new, always. Usually I have let it go, no matter where it would lead me, never stayed long in one place, never gathered any moss. I don't know what forced to a smaller boat that would leave for there."

She was almost sorry when it came time to pack her belongings and get ready to go ashore. The boat was to go on to Havana, and the passengers for Nassau would be transferred to a smaller boat that would leave for there.

New York, January 24.—A continuation of yesterday's buying movement sent prices into a new high ground for the season in the cotton market during today's early trading. May sold at 29.05 before the early buying orders were supplied, but the 29-cent level evidently attracted a great deal of realizing and there were reactions during the afternoon. These carried May off to 28.75 of 25 points from the early high level, and that month closed at 28.71 with the general market closing steadily 1 not declines of 1 to 12 points on the old crop and of 23 to 30 points on the new crop positions.

The market opened very steady at an advance of 4 to 40 points on relatively firm Liverpool cables, continued bullish reports from Manchester and the domestic goods markets, and favorable overnight spot advices from the south. There was a good deal of realizing from the start, but it was very well absorbed by trade buying covering or scattering orders until March touched 28.75 and July 28.70 or about 25 to 27 points net higher on the active positions. The advance was then checked by increased offerings and the market became rather unsettled. There were a few January notices which caused some liquidation by remaining long, and after selling at 28.85 early, that month broke to 28.35 in the late trading. New crop months were also relatively easy, owing to liquidation and Wall Street or local selling which seemed to be promoted by better weather in the south and west and expectations of increased acreage. October sold off to 26.31 or 50 points net lower and closing prices were at about the level of the lowest cotton trading today. A private cable from Liverpool said that at the present rate of consumption and re-exports, England would require 1,000,000 bales of American cotton in 1923, and that the country's growth to carry it through to the end of September.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
ENDS WITH LOSSES

New Orleans, January 24.—After a short period of pronounced strength and new high price records for the season, in the early trading today, the cotton market acquired an equally pronounced reactionary feeling and spent the remainder of the session in a gradual sagging movement, closing being very nearly the lowest of the day. Early gains amounted to 28 to 24 points, carrying March up to 28.63. From this there was a drop to 28.20 for March, where the trading months were 3 to 28 points under the closing quotations of yesterday. Last prices were one point up to 27 down for the day. March closing at 28.20.

Liquidation of the long interest was the main influence against values but, in addition, there was a better feeling regarding new crop conditions, because of recent wet weather, prevailing cold weather and expectations of more wet weather to come. Because of these conditions the new crops were much weaker than the old, hence the great irregularity of the market. In the late trading when March showed net declines of 3 points, October came at net declines of 28 points. October fell to 25.94 and closed a point higher.

Early strength was stimulated by a better Liverpool market than due and reports that the unexpected issuance of notices of the tender of 4,400 bales against January contracts. Some of the notices circulated for a considerable time.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, January 24.—Today's cotton market realized some of the opening of trading until final transactions, the result being that last prices were the lowest. Trading was interspersed with frequent rallies, brought about by purchases in the hope that each point of weakness would be the day's lowest. Not unlike trading which has developed in each cotton level had been reached in the upward movement having realized sales took place. We did not return to Liverpool, which was extremely strong and closed almost at the highest. Neither did we respond to advice of strong demand in American cloth markets. This trend to indicate there were quite a number of new lines in the market satisfied traders with today's levels to make realizations. Another feature about the market is that though we have had reactions before it has been quite time since we have had a single day's trading have been at the bottom and this indicates prices may have gone lower and the market being more liquid and further more late weakness may induce continued liquidation during tomorrow's trading. On Liverpool broke purchases are advised. March closed Thursday, 15.00—Orville Brothers & Co.

New York, January 24.—Liverpool was a steady market, better this morning with spot sales of 10,000 bales and good business reported in Manchester. As a result there was a slight advance in the market. ## MAN BADLY HURT, POLICE SEEK CAR

No Witnesses Have Been Found in Case of Aged Man Hit by Automobile Wednesday.

Unconscious in the muddy street, S. P. Grady, 65, of 282 Capitol avenue, victim of an auto accident, was found by two negro men in Capitol avenue, at Crumley street, just after 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. He was taken to the Piedmont Sanatorium. Examination by surgeons showed that his right shoulder had been fractured, and that he was badly bruised and cut about the head and other parts of the body.

shortly after he was carried into the hospital and stated that he recalled attempting to cross Capitol avenue, when the bright lights of an auto suddenly appeared upon him. He remembered being hurled to the pavement, but could recall nothing else. Call Officers J. H. Davis and R. E. Evans, who were dispatched to the hospital to investigate, had been unable at a late hour at night to find any one who saw the accident.

Emory Camp, negro, of 21 Brandon street, was injured in a collision between the truck he was driving and a street car shortly after 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The accident occurred at Park avenue and Fair street.

The street car was in charge of Motorman Hobbs and Conductor J. G. Henson. The accident was unavoidable, according to information given police.

Coal costs so many marks that a German has invented a tubular device for catching the heat that usually goes up the chimney.

Arrests Follow Alleged Invasion Of Apartment

Veiled Threats Are Being Probed by Police—Young Woman Held.

Thelma DuBoise, age 20, Clayton hotel, and George E. Smith, age 25, 240 W. Fourteenth street, were being held Wednesday at police headquarters, following an alleged invasion of the apartment at 330 Ponce de Leon avenue Tuesday. Both are charged with suspicion.

According to the police, Mrs. Whitefield, who is the wife of Lieutenant Colonel Whitefield, of Fort McPherson, returned home Tuesday afternoon and found the DuBoise woman and Smith in her apartment.

When Mrs. Whitefield, according to the police, demanded an explanation, she was attacked by the DuBoise woman.

Before Mrs. Whitefield's screams were answered both the alleged intruders fled through a rear entrance. The police took Smith into custody late Tuesday when he appeared at the Whitefield home and started to explain his presence in the apartment. The woman was arrested at her hotel Wednesday.

Police suspect a conspiracy on the part of the Smith and his alleged confederate who, according to records at headquarters, have fallen into the hands of the authorities on several occasions, to extort money from Mrs. Whitefield, several veiled threats being made, it is claimed.

Police are not yet ready to give details.

FLEECE BY FRIEND

Motorman Tells Robbery Tale to Police.

W. A. Glover, of Smyrna, a motorman for the Georgia Railway and Power company, when arrested Wednesday night on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, told the police he had been robbed by a "friend" who took him to a hotel, and "fleece" him after he was too drunk to defend himself. Glover said he lost $20.

ELBERTON'S BANKS

DECLARE DIVIDENDS

Elberton, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—Elberton's three banks have held their annual meetings and each paid an 8 per cent dividend, after passing up a neat sum to surplus and undivided profits. The Elberton Loan & Savings was the first to hold its annual meeting. All old officers were re-elected. The past year has been very successful in local bank circles.

The Lowry National Bank of Atlanta, located at Atlanta, the State of Georgia, is closing its affairs for the purpose of merging with the Trust Company of Georgia, Atlanta. All note holders and other creditors of the association are hereby notified to present the notes and other claims for payment.

APARTMENT HOUSE TO COST $1,350,000

James L. Logan Announces That Home for Bachelors Will Be Built Near Capital City Club.

A new eleven-story apartment structure to contain approximately 350 bachelor rooms will be erected soon in the vicinity of the Capital City club at a total cost of $1,350,000, according to announcement Wednesday by James L. Logan, prominent realtor.

The Logan agency Wednesday declared that papers have been executed for the transfer of a valuable parcel near Peachtree and Harris streets, and that the purchaser has under way plans for one of the finest bachelor apartment houses in the country.

Names of the parties to the deal were withheld as the agency is not yet prepared to disclose details of the project.

It is intended that the building shall have spacious lounging rooms, Turkish baths, gymnasiums, ballrooms, a restaurant, and a convention hall.

Every conceivable comfort will be furnished and club features will be provided for resident guests.

The sale of the site selling was made for the Logan agency by L. M. Purdy and R. C. Patterson.

POWER COMPANY TO ASK INCREASE AT ONCE IN RATES

Macon, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—It developed today that the recent trip of officials of the Central Georgia Power company to New York was not for the purpose of selling the utility properties, but to secure additional capital with which to make needed improvements to generate more power.

According to Judge W. H. Felton, president of the company, they failed to get the needed money and on his return here today he announced that an immediate increase in power rates will be necessary. The proposed increase will be 25 per cent.

Before application is made to the Georgia public service commission the sixty-two present consumers of power will be called into consultation and efforts made to get their consent to the increase.

Power consumers in Macon, Forsyth, Barnesville, Griffin, Hampton, Jonesboro, Monticello and Jackson will be affected by the proposed increase.

The present rates as fixed by law are too low, according to Judge Felton, to attract additional capital. The rates have been raised only 10 per cent since the organization of the power company.

DISABLED STEAMER IS TOWED INTO PORT

Savannah, Ga., January 24.—(Special.)—The Persia, a steamship, which suffered a broken rudder yesterday in heavy seas off the coast near here, was towed back into port this afternoon for repairs, which will not require more than a day or two.

She had, besides her crew, fifteen passengers, all from Jacksonville, for Philadelphia.

The Yamacraw, coast guard vessel, and several tugs sent out to the Persia's assistance encountered rough weather, but brought the crippled vessel in.

Peachtree Raid Yields Officers Choice Whiskies

Police Put Under Arrest Man Declared to Be Revenue Agent.

Police seized 25 quarts of choice rye, corn and scotch whisky Wednesday night in a raid on an apartment at 521 Peachtree street, and arrested Sam Dougherty, who, according to the police, is a federal revenue agent. He was held in $200 bond.

The apartment was vacant when the raiding party, consisting of Detectives E. C. Stigall, J. C. Mosely, L. D. Cady and W. O. Murphy entered. They found the liquor hidden under mattresses, and in corners of clothes closets.

According to police, a pressing club formerly owned by Dougherty at Houston and 17th streets was raided last September and a quantity of liquor seized.

The liquor seized Wednesday night, according to police, was a part of a supply taken recently from a West Peachtree street garage. The house at 521 Peachtree is located between Linden and North avenue, less than two blocks from the house at West Peachtree and Linden avenue where a big still and hundreds of gallons of liquor was found last week.

Building Permits and Building Lots

Permits for the year 1922 amounted to $20,384,734, which included about 2,500 dwellings. This means that 2,500 building lots were used up and are no longer available as sites.

The one conclusion that may be drawn from this statement is that the available supply of building lots is growing scarcer and the remaining ones may be expected to increase in price. Any one who contemplates the purchase of any kind of building lot should act with promptness as there is nothing to be gained by delay.
